It shall be prohibited to require the employee to perform work not specified by the labor contract except in the cases stipulated by this Code and other federal laws.

Article 61. Coming into effect of the labor contract

The labor contract shall come into effect on the day of its signing by the employee and the employer, unless otherwise set by federal laws, other normative legal acts or the labor contract, or on the day of the employee actually starting the work with the knowledge or on instructions of the employer or its representative.

The employee shall start performing his/her work functions as of the day specified in the labor contract.

Should no specific work commencement date be mentioned in the labor contract, the employee shall start his/her work on the next working day after coming into effect of the labor contract.

Should the employee fail to start his/her work without any valid reasons for a week after the due time, the labor contract shall be cancelled.

Article 62. Issuance of the work record book and copies of documents connected with the job

On the employee's written request the employer shall, not later than three days after submission of said request, issue to the employee copies of the documents connected with the job (hiring order copy, copy of job reassignment orders, dismissal order copy; excerpts from the work record book; records of wages, of the working term for the employer, etc.). Copies of the documents connected with the job shall be duly verified and issued to the employee free of charge.

At termination of the labor contract the employer shall issue to the employee on the day of his/her dismissal (the last day on the job) the work record book and, on the employee's written request, copies of the documents connected with the job.

Should it prove impossible to issue the work record book on the day of the employee's dismissal due to the employee's absence or his/her refusal to receive the work record book in person, the employer shall send a notice to the employee on the requirement to personally turn up for the work record book or grant consent for it to be mailed to him/her. As of the day of sending such notice the employer shall be relieved of any liability for delays with issuance of the work record book.

CHAPTER 11. CONCLUSION OF THE LABOR CONTRACT

Article 63. Age at which conclusion of the labor contract is permitted

It shall be permitted to conclude labor contract with persons attaining the age of sixteen.

In cases of completing the basic general education or leaving the general educational establishment in accordance with the federal law, persons shall be entitled to conclude labor contracts at attaining the age of fifteen.

With consent of one parent (guardian, custodian) and a patronage body a labor contract can be concluded with a student attaining the age of fourteen for performing light work out of school hours which shall not be harmful to his/her health and not detrimental to the study process.

In movie industry organizations, theaters, theatrical and concert organizations, circuses it shall be permitted, with consent of one parent (guardian, custodian) and a patronage body, to conclude labor contracts with persons under the age of fourteen for participating in creation and/or performance of art works without any harm to their health and moral development.

Article 64. Guarantees at concluding labor contracts

Unjustified refusal to conclude a labor contract shall be prohibited.

All and any direct or indirect restrictions or granting direct or indirect advantages at concluding a labor contract depending on the sex, race, skin color, nationality, language, origin, property, social and official status, domicile (including availability or unavailability of registration at the place of residence or lodgment) as well as on any other factors not connected with professional qualities of employees shall not be permitted, except for the cases stipulated by the federal law.

It is not allowed to refuse women in conclusion of a labor agreement because of their pregnancy or presence of children.

It is not allowed to refuse employees, that were invited in written form from the previous working place, in conclusion of a labor agreement, for one month beginning from the day of their withdrawal from the previous working place.

Employer must inform a person who was refused in conclusion of a labor agreement about reasons of refusal in written form.

A person who was refused in conclusion of a labor agreement can appeal in court about the rightfulness of this decision.

Article 65. Documents necessary for conclusion of labor agreement

For conclusion of a labor agreement an employee must present the following documents to an employer:

- a passport or a different personal identification document
- a service record book, except cases when a labor agreement is concluded for the first time or when employee starts working at a secondary job.
- insurance certificate of state retirement insurance

- military record documents - for employees who are subjects to call-up and conscripts
- a diploma or a certificate of education, qualification or special training - for jobs that require special knowledge or special training.

In some cases additional documents may also be required by employer. Necessity and type of additional documents are regulated by specifics of job, this Code, other federal laws and decrees of the President of the Russian Federation and the Government of the Russian Federation.

It is forbidden to require additional documents from employee, except documents that are mentioned in this Code, other federal laws, decrees of the President of the Russian Federation and the Government of the Russian Federation.

Employer is responsible for issuing a service record book and insurance certificate of state retirement insurance to employee who is concluding a labor agreement for the first time.

Article 66. Service record book

A service record book of a standard type is the main document intended for recording of labor activities and seniority of an employee.

A form and regulations for filling and storage of service record books and providing employers with service record books are set by the Government of the Russian Federation.

Employer (except employers who are physical entities) must keep service record books of all employees who have worked in an organization for more than five days, presuming that this organization is the primary job place of these employees.

Information about employee, work duties of employee, transitions to a different permanent job, dismissal of employee, as well as information about reasons for termination of labor agreement and awards for progress in work must be recorded in a service record book. Information about fines and punishments are not recorded in service record book, except cases when dismissal is a mean of disciplinary punishment.

Information about a secondary job place can be recorded in a service record book at primary job place on request of employee, presuming that employee provides correspondent documents, proving that employee is indeed working at a secondary job place.

Records about reason for termination of a labor agreement in service record book must be performed according to formulations and regulations of this Code or a different federal law with a reference to the correspondent article or part of this Code or a different federal law.

Article 67. Form of a labor agreement

A labor agreement is concluded in written form. Two copies of a labor agreement are made. Each of these copies must be signed by both sides. One copy of a labor agreement is given to employee, another one remains with employer.

A labor agreement that is not drawn in a designated form is considered concluded if employee started working, and informs an employer or employer's representative about it or if employee starts working by an order of employer or employer's representative. In case of actual admittance of employee to work, employer must to draw a labor agreement in written form no later than in three days from the day when an employee was actually admitted to work.

When labor agreements are concluded with several categories of employees, laws and other legislative standard acts may request consulting about a possibility of concluding a labor agreement or about conditions of a labor agreement with correspondent entities or authorities that are not employers on these agreements or drawing more copies of a labor agreement.

Article 68. Conclusion of employment

Employment is officially concluded by an order of employer, that is issued upon conclusion of a labor agreement. Contents of this order must correspond to conditions of a concluded labor agreement.

Employment order is issued by employer and declared to employee in three days beginning from the day of conclusion of a labor agreement. A written confirmation by employee is required. Employer must provide employee with a notarized copy of this order on employee's request.

Employer must inform employee about internal labor rules of an employing organization, other local legislative standard acts, that are relevant to the job activity of employee and about terms of a collective agreement.

Article 69. Medical examination required for conclusion of labor agreement

Entities who are less than 18 years old on the moment of conclusion of the labor agreement and other entities, in cases specified by this Code and other federal laws, are subject to obligatory preliminary medical examination.

Article 70. Condition of probationary period upon employment

One side of a labor agreement may specify a necessity for a probationary period, that is required to test skills and abilities of an employee to determine whether an employee fits the occupied position.

A probationary period condition must be stated in a labor agreement. If no probationary period condition is stated in a labor agreement, then it means that an employee is accepted without probationary period.

During probationary period an employee is subject to this Code, laws, other legislative standard acts, local legislative standard acts that contain norms of labor law, collective agreement and treaties.

A probationary period cannot be set for the following categories of people:

- people who are employed after a competition on the offered job position was performed according to the regulations of law

- pregnant women
- people who are below the age of eighteen
- people who have graduated from junior, medium and senior professional education facilities and who are getting their first job in the chosen specialty.
- people who are elected (chosen) on a paid position that requires an election
- people who are invited on this job after transition from a different employer according to an agreement between employers
- other categories, specified in this Code, other federal laws and a collective agreement.

A probationary period cannot exceed three months if a different term is not specified by a federal law. A probationary period cannot exceed six months for chief executives of organizations and their assistants, head accountants and their assistants, chief executives of branch offices, representative offices and other separate structural units of an organization if the opposite is not stated by federal law.

A period of temporary incapacity of employee for work (temporary disablement of employee) and other periods when employee was actually absent from work are not considered a part of a probationary period.

Article 71. Results of a probationary period

If employer is not satisfied with employee's performance during probationary period, then employer has right to terminate a labor agreement with employee before the probationary period expires. An employer must notify an employee about termination of a labor agreement in written form at least three days prior to termination. Employer must state reasons for considering the results of a probationary period negative in this notification. If employee is not satisfied with the decision of employer than employee has right to appeal to court.

If results of a probationary period are negative, then a labor agreement is terminated without considering opinion of a trade union and without payment of terminal wages.

If a probationary period has expired and an employee continues performing job functions, then results of a probationary period are considered positive and termination of a labor agreement is possible only for general reasons.

If employee decides that the offered job is not suitable for him during a probationary period, then employee has a right to terminate a labor agreement by his own will. Employee must warn the employer three days prior to the termination.

CHAPTER 12. MODIFICATION OF A LABOR AGREEMENT

Article 72. Transition of an employee to a different permanent job and transferring an employee to a different working place

Transition of an employee to a different permanent job in the same organization, initiated by an employer, i.e. changing job functions or changing significant conditions of a labor agreement or transition to a permanent job to a different organization or to a different region with the organization is possible only with written consent of an employee.

An employer must transfer an employee who needs a different job according to medical conclusion to a different existing job position within the organization. This different position must not be harmful to employee because of his state of health according to results of a medical examination. Consent of the employee is required for this transition. If the employee doesn't agree on transition or if there is no existing correspondent job in the organization, then labor agreement is terminated according to Paragraph 8 of Article 77 of this Code.

Transferring employee to a different working place within an organization, transition of employee to a different structural department of an organization in the same region and ordering employee to work on a different machine or aggregate is not considered transition to a different permanent job if it doesn't lead to change of job functions and (or) change of significant conditions of a labor agreement.

Article 73. Changing significant conditions of a labor agreement

Employee has right to initiate changes of significant conditions of a labor agreement because of reasons connected with change of organizational or technological aspects of job environment if the job function of employee is not changed.

Employee must be informed about these changes by employer in written form no less than two month prior to their enactment, if a different procedure is not required by this Code or a different federal law.

If employee doesn't agree to continue working in new environment, then employer must offer a different existing job position within the organization to an employee in written form. This position must correspond to qualification and state of health according to the results of medical examination of employee. If such position does not exist then employer must offer employee a lower position with job functions that employee can perform according to his qualification and state of health according to the results of medical examination.

If described job position doesn't exist and if employee rejects an offered position then labor agreement is terminated according to Paragraph 7 of Article 77 of this Code.

In cases when events described in Paragraph 1 of this article may lead to mass dismissal of employees, employer has the right to introduce an incomplete working day for a period of up to six months in order to preserve job places. In this case employer must consider opinion of elected trade union representatives of this organization.

If employee refuses to continue working in a different regime then a labor agreement is terminated according to Paragraph 2 of Article 81 of this Code. In this case employer must provide the required guarantees and compensations to employee.

Cancellation of regime of incomplete working day may be enacted by employer, considering opinion of representatives of an organization.

Changes of significant conditions of a labor agreement that may worsen employee's position in comparison to conditions of a collective agreement cannot be enacted.

Article 74. Temporary transition to a different job in case of technical necessity

In case of technical necessity, employer has right to transfer employee to a job position in the same organization that is not mentioned in a labor agreement for a period of no longer than one month. Wages must be paid basing on the new job position, but should not be less than average wages on the previous position. This type of transition is possible for prevention of a catastrophe or a technical accident or for elimination of the consequences of a catastrophe, technical accident or a natural disaster; to prevent accidents, standing idle (temporary stopping of work because of economical, technical, technological or organizational reasons, destruction or damage of property and for replacement of a missing employee. Employee cannot be transferred to a job position that is counter-indicated to this employee because of the state of health according to the results of medical examination.

Period of transition of employee to a different job position for performing job functions of a missing employee cannot exceed one month in a year (from January, 1st to December, 31st).

Employee can be transferred to a job position that requires lower qualification with his written consent.

Article 75. Labor relations in cases of change of organization property ownership, change of jurisdiction of an organization and restructuring of organization.

When ownership of the property of an organization is changed, a new owner has right to terminate a labor agreement with organization chief executive, his assistants and head accountant no later than in three months from the date of gaining rights of property.

Change of ownership of the property of an organization cannot be a reason for termination of labor agreements with other employees of an organization.

If an employee refuses to continue performing his job functions because of the change of ownership of organization property, then labor agreement is terminated according to Paragraph 6 of Article 77 of this Code.

If ownership of the property of an organization is changed, number of employees can be reduced only after official registration of transfer of the rights of ownership.

In case of change of jurisdiction of an organization, or in case of restructuring of an organization (merging, joining, division, transformation, separation), labor relationship is resumed with consent of employee.

If employee refuses to continue performing job functions in cases defined in Paragraph 5 of this article, then labor agreement is terminated according to Paragraph 6 of Article 77 of this Code.

Article 76. Dismissal from job

An employer must dismiss (forbid to perform job functions) an employee that:

- has appeared on working place in a state of alcoholic, narcotic or other intoxication
- has not completed education and testing of knowledge in the area of labor protection
- has not completed an obligatory preliminary or periodical medical examination.
- if counter-indications that prevent an employee from performing job functions that are defined in a labor agreement are present according to results of medical examination
- if demanded by authorities or officials, empowered by federal laws or other legislative standard acts and in other cases, specified by federal laws or other legislative standard acts.

Employer dismisses an employee (forbids an employee to perform job functions) for the whole period of time until the factors that caused dismissal from job (forbidding to perform job functions) will be removed.

No wages is paid to an employee for the period of dismissal (forbidding to perform job functions), except cases, specified in federal laws and other legislative standard acts. If an employee is dismissed because of non-completion of training or failure in test of skills and knowledge in the area of labor protection, or because of the results of obligatory preliminary or periodical medical examination and if this failure is not a result of employee's fault then employee should be paid wages as for idle time.

CHAPTER 13. TERMINATION OF A LABOR AGREEMENT

Article 77. General reasons for termination of a labor agreement

General reasons for termination of a labor agreement are:

1. agreement of all sides of a labor agreement (Article 78);
2. expiration of term of a labor agreement (Paragraph 2, Article 58), except cases when labor relationship is actually continuing and neither side requested its termination;
3. termination of a labor agreement on employee's initiative (Article 80);
4. termination of a labor agreement on employer's initiative (Article 81);
5. transition of employee to a job for a different employer or transition to an elected job (position) on employee's request or with employee's consent;
6. refusal of an employee to continue performing job functions because of the change of ownership of organization property, change of jurisdiction of an organization or restructuring of an organization (Article 75);
7. refusal of employee to continue performing job functions because of changes in significant conditions of a labor agreement (Article 73);
8. refusal of employee to transfer to a different job position because of the state of health according to the results of medical examination (Article 72, Part 2);
9. refusal of employee to transfer to a different job position because of transferring of employer to a different region (Article 72, Part 1);
10. circumstances not depending on will of sides (Article 83);
11. violation of regulations of conclusion of a labor agreement, specified in this Code or in other federal laws, if this violation excludes a possibility of continuation of performing job functions. (Article 84)

A labor agreement can also be terminated because of other reasons, specified in this Code or other federal laws.

In all cases, the last day of employee's work is considered the day of dismissal.

Article 78. Termination of a labor agreement on mutual agreement of all sides

A labor agreement can be terminated at any time upon mutual agreement of all sides.

Article 79. Termination of a fixed-date labor agreement

A fixed-date labor agreement is terminated with expiration of the term of its validity. An employee must be warned about expiration of the agreement in written form not later than three days prior to dismissal.

A labor agreement that is concluded on the period until completion of a specified work is terminated on completion of this work.

A labor agreement that is concluded on the period of performing job functions of a missing employee is terminated with return of the missing employee.

A labor agreement that is concluded on the period of performing a seasoned job is terminated on the end of a specified season.

Article 80. Termination of a labor agreement upon employee's request (voluntary withdrawal)

An employee has right to terminate a labor agreement. Employee must warn employer about termination of the agreement in written form at least two weeks prior to termination.

A labor agreement can be terminated before expiration of withdrawal notice period upon mutual agreement between an employer and an employee.

In cases, when request of an employee for termination of a labor agreement (voluntary withdrawal) is caused by events that prevent the employee to continue performing job functions (retirement, enrolment to an educational institution and other cases), and in cases of violation of laws and other legislative standard acts that contain norms of labor laws, terms of collective agreement, accord or labor agreement by an employer, employer must terminate a labor agreement in term specified in request of the employee.

An employee can withdraw his request during all withdrawal notice period. In this case dismissal does not take place, except cases when a different employee, who cannot be refused in conclusion of a labor agreement according to this Code and other federal laws, is invited to this position in written form.

An employee has right to stop performing job functions upon expiration of withdrawal notice period. In the last day of work of an employee, employer must return service book and other job-related documents to an employee upon a written request of an employee and effect a final payment.

If a labor agreement was not terminated upon expiration of withdrawal notice period and if an employee does not insist on withdrawal, then labor agreement is resumed.

Article 81. Termination of a labor agreement on employer's initiative

A labor agreement can be terminated by an employer in the following cases:

1. in case of dissolving of an organization or termination of activities of an employer if an employer is a physical entity.
2. in case of reduction of number of employees in organization
3. in case if an employee is not fit for the occupied position or performed job functions because of:
 - a) state of health according to medical examination
 - b) insufficient qualification according to the results of professional attestation
4. in case of change of ownership of organization property (in this case employer has the right to terminate labor agreement only with organization chief executive, assistants of organization chief executive and head accountant).

5. in case of repeated non-fulfillment of job functions by an employee without reasonable excuse if an employee has a disciplinary punishment.
6. in case of single violation of job duties by an employee:
 - a) truancy (absence from work without reasonable excuse for a period longer than four consequent hours during a working day)
 - b) appearing on working place in a state of alcoholic, narcotic or other intoxication
 - c) unauthorized disclosure of a secret, protected by law (State secret, commercial secret, official secret and other secrets), that was learned by an employee because of his job functions
 - d) perpetration of a theft (including minor theft), embezzlement, misappropriation, intentional damage or destruction of property by an employee. This action must be established by a valid sentence of the court or a resolution of an official authority that is authorized to apply administrative punishment.
 - e) violation of labor protection regulations if this violation has led to disastrous consequences (industrial accident, damages, catastrophe) or could certainly lead to these consequences.
7. in case of commitment of fault actions by employee who is working with monetary or commodity values if these actions lead to loss of trust of an employer to an employee.
8. in case of commitment of an immoral deed by an employee who is performing pedagogical functions if this immoral deed makes continuation of performing job function by this employee impossible.
9. in case of making an unjustified decision by a chief executive of an organization (branch office, representative office), assistants of a chief executive of an organization and head accountant that has led to violation of safety of organization's property, unjustified usage of organization's property or other damage to organization's property;
10. in case of single violation of job duties by a chief executive of an organization (branch office, representative office) or by assistants of a chief executive of an organization;

- 11.in case of submission of false documents by an employee to an employer or intentional submission of false information for conclusion of a labor agreement;
- 12.in case of termination of access to State secret, if performed job requires access to State secret;
- 13.in cases, specified in a labor agreement with chief executive of an organization or members of collegial executive authority of an organization;
- 14.in other cases, specified in this Code and other federal laws.

Dismissal because of reasons, stated in Paragraphs 2 and 3 of this Article is allowed if transition of an employee to a different job position with consent of an employee is impossible.

Dismissal of an employee on employer's initiative is not allowed during the period of temporary incapacity of employee for work and during the period of leave of an employee (except cases of dissolving of an organization or termination employer's activities if an employer is a physical entity).

In case of termination of activity of a branch office, representative office or other structural part of an organization that is located in a different region, termination of labor agreements with employees of these structural parts of an organization is conducted according to the rules of termination of labor agreements in cases of dissolving of an organization.

Article 82. Obligatory participation of a trade union authority in proceeding of termination of a labor agreement on the initiative of an employer

If a decision on reduction of the staff or number of employees and possible termination of labor agreements with employees is taken, then according to Paragraph 2 of Article 81 of this Code, employer must inform elected trade union authority about this decision in written form no later than two months prior to the commence of the according measures, and if the decision on reduction of the staff or number of employees can lead to mass dismissal of employees - no later than three months prior to the commence of the according measures. Criteria of mass dismissal is defined in industrial and (or) territorial agreements.

Dismissal of employees who are members of a trade union according to Subparagraph B of Paragraph 3 and Paragraph 5 of Article 81 of this Code is possible only with consideration of an opinion of elected trade union authorities of this organization according to Article 373 of this Code.

During professional attestation that may lead to dismissal of employees according to Subparagraph B of Paragraph 3 of Article 81 of this Code, at least one member of attestation committee must represent a correspondent elected trade union authority.

A collective agreement of an organization may specify a different order of obligatory participation of an elected trade union authority of this organization in proceeding of questions, connected with termination of labor agreements on employer's initiative.

Article 83. Termination of a labor agreement because of circumstances that do not depend on the will of sides

A labor agreement must be terminated because of the following circumstances that do not depend on the will of sides:

1. Drafting of an employee to military service or transferring of an employee to an alternative civil service that substitutes military service;
2. Restoring of an employee who previously performed this job on previous position by the decision of State Labor Inspection or the court;
3. Non-election on the position;
4. Sentence of an employee to a punishment that excludes possibility of continuation of performing previous job functions according to a valid sentence of the court;
5. Consideration of an employee completely incapable for work according to the results of medical examination;
6. Death of an employee or an employer if an employer is a physical entity, and declaration of an employee or an employer if an employer is a physical entity dead or missing;
7. In case of emergency that prevents continuation of labor relationship (war, catastrophe, natural disaster, heavy accident, epidemic and other emergency circumstances) if this case of emergency is recognized by the decision of the Government of Russian Federation or government authority of the correspondent subject of Russian Federation.

Termination of a labor agreement with an employee on reason, listed in Paragraph 2 of this Article is allowed if it is impossible to transfer this employee to a different job with consent of an employee.

Article 84. Termination of a labor agreement because of violation of obligatory regulations for its conclusion, specified in this Code or other federal law

A labor agreement must be terminated as a result of violation of obligatory regulations for its conclusion, specified in this Code (Paragraph 11, Article 77) or other federal law if violation of these rules excludes possibility of continuation of work in the following cases:

- in case of conclusion of a labor agreement with an employee who is forbidden to undertake certain positions or practice certain activities by a valid sentence of the court;
- in case of conclusion of a labor agreement with an employee who is forbidden to perform the necessary job functions because of state of health according to results of medical examination;
- in case of absence of required documents about necessary education, if special knowledge or training is required for performing job functions according to a federal law or a different legislative standard act;
- in other cases specified by a federal law.

A labor agreement is terminated in cases, specified in the first part of this article, if it is impossible to transfer an employee to a different existing job with his written consent.

In cases of termination of a labor agreement according to Paragraph 11 of Article 77 of this Code, employer has to effect a discharge payment in the amount of average monthly wages to an employee if violation of regulations of conclusion of a labor agreement was not caused by the fault of employee.

CHAPTER 14. PROTECTION OF PERSONAL INFORMATION OF AN EMPLOYEE

Article 85. Concept of personal information of an employee. Processing of personal information of an employee.

Personal information of an employee is an information required by an employer because of labor relationship and that refers to a specific employee.

Processing of personal information of an employee is reception, storing, combining, sharing or any other usage of personal information of an employee.

Article 86. General requirements to processing personal information of an employee and warranties of protection of this information

To guarantee human rights and freedoms of a citizen, employer and his representatives must follow the general requirements listed below during processing of personal information of an employee:

If an employer refuses to exclude or correct personal information of an employee, then an employee has right to inform employer in written form about disagreement and provide correspondent reasons for this disagreement. A notice by an employee, expressing point of view of the employee can be added to personal information of estimative type;
- right to demand from employer informing of all entities who were previously given incorrect or incomplete personal information of an employee about all exclusions, additions and corrections in personal information of an employee;
- right to appeal to court about any non-legitimate actions or inactions of an employer relevant to processing and protection of personal information of an employee.

Article 90. Responsibility for violation of regulations relevant to processing and protection of personal information of an employee Entities that are guilty in violation of regulations relevant to receiving, processing and protection of personal information of an employee may bear criminal, civil, administrative or disciplinary responsibility according to federal laws.

SECTION IV. WORKING TIME

CHAPTER 15. GENERAL STATEMENTS

Article 91. Concept of working time. Normal length of working time.

Working time is a period of time during which an employee has to perform his job duties according to internal rules of an organization and conditions of a labor agreement and other periods of time that are considered working time according to laws and other legislative standard acts.

Normal length of working time cannot exceed 40 hours in a week.

An employer is responsible for keeping record of actual working time of each employee.

Article 92. Reduced length of working time

Normal length of working time is reduced on

- 16 hours in a week - for employees below the age of sixteen;
- 5 hours in a week - for employees who are invalids of 1st or 2nd group;
- 4 hours in a week - for employees in the age between sixteen and eighteen years;
- 4 hours in a week or more - for employees who are working in dangerous and (or) harmful environments, as specified by the Government of Russian Federation.

Length of working time for students of educational institutions below eighteen years old, who are working during academic year in time free from studies, cannot exceed half of the norms, specified in first part of this Article.

A federal law can specify reduced length of working time for other categories of employees (pedagogical workers, medical workers and other categories)

Article 93. Incomplete working time (part-time working)

An agreement between employer and employee can specify establishment of incomplete working day or incomplete working week. This agreement can be made upon conclusion of a labor agreement and later. Employer must establish incomplete working day or incomplete working week on request of a pregnant woman, one of the parents who have a child below the age of fourteen (or an invalid child below the age of eighteen) and of a person who is nursing an disabled family member according to results of medical examination.

Wages and other payments during working on terms of incomplete working time are calculated proportionally to the actual time of work or depending on volume of completed work.

Working on terms of incomplete working time doesn't result in any limitations of length of annual paid leave, record of working experience and other labor rights.

Article 94. Length of daily working time (shift)

Length of daily working time (shift) cannot exceed:

- for employees in the age between fifteen and sixteen years- 5 hours, between sixteen and eighteen years- 7 hours
- for students of basic education institutions (schools) and educational institutions for professional training that combine working and studying in the period of academic year in the age between fourteen and sixteen years - 2.5 hours, between sixteen and eighteen years - 3.5 hours;
- for invalids - according to results of medical examination;

For employees working at dangerous or harmful environments where reduced length of working day is used, maximum allowable length of daily working time (shift) cannot exceed:

- 8 hours - for 36 hour working week
- 6 hours - for 30 hour (or less) working week

Length of working day (shift) for creative employees of cinematographic organizations, television and video camera crews, employees of theaters, theatric and concert organizations, circuses, mass media and professional sportsmen according to listings of these categories, ratified by the Government of Russian Federation, can be established according to federal laws and other legislative standard acts, local standard acts, collective agreements or labor agreements.

Article 95. Length of working time in days preceding holidays and rest-days

Length of working time or shift in days preceding non-working holidays is reduced by one hour.

In organizations that require continuous working process and on several types of jobs where it is impossible to reduce length of working time (shift) in days preceding a holiday, working overtime is compensated to an employee by providing additional leave time or, with consent of an employee, by payment according to norms of overtime payment.

Length of working time in days preceding rest-days cannot exceed five hours for a six-day working week.

Article 96. Working at night time

Night - time from 22.00 to 6.00.

Length of working time (shift) at night is reduced by one hour.

Length of working time (shift) at night is not reduced for employees who have reduced length of working time and for employees who are hired specifically for working at night time, if anything different is not specified in a collective agreement.

Length of working time at night is considered adequate to length of working time at daytime in cases when it is required by labor environment, and for shift works at six-day working week with one rest-day. A list of this type of works can be specified in a collective agreement or in a local standard act.

It is not permitted to allow the following categories of people to work at night: pregnant women, invalids and employees below age of 18 years, with the exception of entities involved in creation and (or) performance of pieces of art, and other categories of employees, specified in this Code and other federal laws. Women, who have children below three years old, employees who have invalid children and employees responsible for nursing disabled members of their families according to results of medical examination, mothers and fathers who are growing children below the age of five without a matrimonial partner, and guardians of children of the indicated age can be allowed to work at night only with their written confirmation and if this kind of work is not forbidden to them because of state of health according to medical examination. These employees must be informed in written form about their right to refuse working at night.

Order of working of creative employees of cinematographic organizations, television and video camera crews, employees of theaters, theatric and concert organizations, circuses, mass media and professional sportsmen according to listings of these categories, ratified by the Government of Russian Federation, can be established according to collective agreement, local standard act, or agreement of sides of a labor agreement.

Article 97. Working beyond the limits of normal length of working time Working beyond the limits of normal length of working time can be performed on the initiative of employee (combining jobs) and on the initiative of employer (overtime).

Article 98. Working beyond the limits of normal length of working time on the initiative of employee (combining jobs)

On a request of an employee, an employer has right to allow an employee working on another labor agreement within the same organization on a different position, specialty or profession beyond the limits of normal length of working time in order of internal combination of jobs.

An employee has right to conclude a labor agreement with a different employer on conditions of external combination of jobs, unless it is forbidden by this Code or other federal laws.

Work beyond normal limits of working time cannot exceed four hours in a day and 16 hours in a week.

Internal combination of jobs is not allowed in cases when a reduced working time is established, except cases specified in this Code or other federal laws.

Article 99. Working beyond limits of normal length of working time on the initiative of employer (overtime job)

Overtime job is a job, performed by an employee on the initiative of employer beyond the limits of normal length of working time, daily working time (shift) and working more than normal number of hours in a recorded period.

Requesting overtime work is performed by an employer with written consent of an employee in the following cases:

1. in cases when overtime work is necessary for defense of the country and in cases when overtime work is necessary to prevent industrial accident or a natural disaster;
2. in cases when a job relevant to systems of public water supply, public gas supply, public heating, public electricity supply, public sewage, public transportation and public communication are performed - in cases when it is necessary to remove unexpected circumstances that prevent normal functioning of these systems.
3. in cases when it is necessary to complete work that could not be completed in normal working time as a result of an unexpected delay because of technological reasons, if non-completion of this work may lead to damage or destruction of employer's property, state or municipal property or may cause danger to life and health of people;
4. in cases when temporary works on repairing and restoring of damaged machines or buildings are performed, if malfunctioning or damage may lead to stopping of work for a large number of employees;
5. in cases when it is necessary to continue work because of absence of a shiftman from work if the type of work doesn't allow interruption. In these cases employer must immediately take measures for replacement of a shiftman with a different employee.

In other cases, requesting overtime work is allowed with written consent of employee and with consideration of opinion of elected trade union authority of this organization.

It is not allowed to request overtime work from pregnant women, workers below the age of eighteen years, and other categories of employees according to federal laws. Requesting overtime work from invalids and women who have children below the age of three is allowed only with their written consent and if these works are not forbidden to them because of state of health according to the results of medical examination. Invalids and women who have children below the age of three must be informed in written form about their right to refuse working overtime.

Overtime work cannot exceed four hours in two days and 120 hours in a year for each employee.

An employer must precisely record all overtime work, performed by each employee.

CHAPTER 16. WORKING TIME ROUTINE

Article 100. Working time routine

Working time routine should make provision for the duration of the working week (five days' working week with two days off, six days' working week with one day off, a working week with a day off according to a sliding schedule) work routine with irregular working hours for some certain categories of employees, the duration of daily work (shift), time to start and finish work, the time of breaks during work, the number of shifts per day, the alternation of working days and days off, which are established by the collective agreement or by the internal labour regulations of the organization in accordance with the present Code, other federal laws, the collective agreement, contracts.

Peculiarities of working time routine and rest time of employees of transport, communications and other services having a special nature of work are determined according to the procedure established by the Government of the Russian Federation.

Article 101. Irregular working hours

Irregular working hours are a special work routine when some individual employees may be involved in their labour function fulfilment episodically beyond the standard working hours as ordered by the employer from necessity. The list of employees having irregular working hours is determined by the collective agreement, contract or the internal labour regulations of the organization.

Article 102. Work on flexible-time scheme

When working on flexible-time scheme, the beginning, the end or the total duration of working hours is determined by the parties' agreement.

The employer ensures that the employee should work the total number off of working hours within the appropriate record-keeping periods (a working day, week, month and others).

Article 103. Shift work

Shift work - work in two, three or four shifts - is introduced when the duration of the production process exceeds the admissible duration of daily work, as well as with the purpose of more effective use, increase in the volume of output and rendered services.

Working in shifts each group of employees is to do work within the established working hours in accordance with the shift operation schedule.

While compiling the shift operation schedule, the employer is to take into consideration the opinion of the employees' representative body. Shift operating schedules are, as a rule, supplements to the collective agreement.

Shift operation schedules are to be brought to the notice of employees not later than one month before their carrying into effect.

Working two shifts running is banned.

Article 104. Added up calculation of working hours

In organizations or in fulfilling separate kinds of work, where according to the conditions of production (work) it is impossible to keep to the daily or weekly duration of working hours established for the given category of employees, it is admitted to introduce added up calculation of working hours so that the duration of working hours for the record-keeping period (a month, a quarter and others) would not exceed the standard working hours. The record-keeping period cannot be longer than one year.

The procedure of added up calculation of working hours is established by the internal labour regulations of the organization.

Article 105. Dividing the working day into parts

In certain types of work where it is necessary due to the special nature of labour as well as in executing work of different intensity during the working day (shift), the working day can be divided into parts, so that the total duration of working hours would not exceed the established duration of the daily work. Such division is fulfilled by the employer on the basis of the local standard act, adopted with taking into account the opinion of the elected trade union body of the given organization.

SECTION V. TIME OF REST

CHAPTER 17. GENERAL STATEMENTS

Article 106. Time of rest concept

Time of rest is the time, when the employee is free from his or her labour duties and which can be used at the employee's discretion.

Article 107. Types of time of rest

Types of time of rest include:

- breaks during the working day (shift);
- daily (between shifts) rest;
- days off (weekly continuous rest);
- non-working holidays;
- leaves

CHAPTER 18. BREAKS IN WORK, DAYS OFF AND NON-WORKING HOLIDAYS

Article 108. Breaks for rest and meal

During the working day (shift) the employee should be given a break for rest and meal, not more than two hours long, but not shorter than 30 minutes, which is not included into working hours.

The time of the break and its concrete duration are established by the internal labour regulations of the organization or on agreement between the employee and the employer.

In kinds of work where it is impossible to give a break for rest and meal because of the conditions of production (work), the employer must give the employee an opportunity to have rest and meal during the working hours. The list of such kinds of work as well as places for rest and meals are established by the internal labour regulations of the organization.

Article 109. Special breaks for warming and rest

In some types of work the employees are to be given, during working hours, special breaks caused by the technology and organization of production and labour. These types of work and the procedure of granting such breaks are established by the internal labour regulations of the organization.

The employees who work in cold seasons outdoors or in closed non-heated premises, as well as loaders doing loading and unloading operations and other employees, in case of need, are given special breaks for warming and rest, which are included into the working hours. The employer must provide equipment of the room for employees' warming and rest.

Article 110. The duration of weekly continuous rest

The weekly continuous rest cannot be shorter than 42 hours.

Article 111. Days off

All the employees are granted days off (weekly continuous rest). In case of five days' working week the employees are given two days off a week, in case of six days' working week they are given one day off.

Sunday is a common day off. The other day off in case of five days' working week is established by the collective agreement or by the internal labour regulations of the organization. Both days off are given successively, as a rule.

In organizations where it is impossible to suspend work because of production and technical, and organizational conditions, each group of employees, in turn, gets days off on different days of the week in accordance with the internal labour regulations of the organization.

Article 112. Non-working holidays

Non-working holidays in the Russian Federation are:

- 1 and 2 January - New Year;
- 7 January - Christmas;
- 23 February - Day of the Defender of Motherland;
- 8 March - International Women's Day;
- 1 and 2 May - Spring and Labor Holiday;
- 9 May - Victory Day;
- 12 June - Day of Russia;
- 7 November - Anniversary of October Revolution, Day of Agreement and Reconciliation;
- 12 December - Day of the Russian Federation Constitution.

If a day off coincides with a non-working holiday, the day off is shifted to the working day which follows the holiday.

On non-working holidays there are allowed types of work, which cannot be suspended because of production and technical conditions (continuously working organizations), types of work caused by the necessity of providing services to the population, as well as urgent repair and loading and unloading operations.

The Government of the Russian Federation has the right to shift days off to other days so that employees could use their days off and non-working holidays more rationally.

Article 113. Ban on work on days off and non-working holidays. Exceptional cases of involving employees in work on days off and non-working holidays

Work on days off and non-working holidays is banned, as a rule.

Employees can be involved in work on days off and non-working holidays with their written consent in the following situations:

- to prevent an accident at work, a catastrophe, to eliminate consequences of an accident at work, a catastrophe or a natural disaster;

- to prevent accidents, destruction of property;
- to fulfill work unforeseen before, when further normal work of the entire organization or its units depends on urgent fulfillment of this work.

It is allowed to attract creative workers of cinematographic organizations, television and videorecording teams, theatres, theatre and concert organizations, circuses, mass media, professional sportsmen to work on days off and non-working holidays in accordance with lists of categories of these employees in organizations financed from the budget in the order established by the Government of the Russian Federation, and in the other organizations - in the order established by the collective agreement.

In other cases employees can be involved in work on days off and non-working holidays with their written consent, and considering the opinion of the elected trade union body of the given organization.

Invalids and women having children under three years old are allowed to work on days off and on non-working holidays if such work is not banned according to the medical evidence. In this case invalids and women having children under three years old should be acquainted with their right to refuse to work on days off and on non-working holidays in the written form.

Involving employees in work on days off and on non-working holidays is done according to the employer's written order.

CHAPTER 19. LEAVE

Article 114. Annual paid leave

Employees are granted annual leaves with the reservation of their working place (post) and average earnings.

Article 115. The duration of main annual paid leave

The duration of the main annual paid leave granted to employees is 28 calendar days.

The main annual paid leave longer than 28 calendar days (extended main leave) is granted to employees in accordance with the present Code and other federal laws.

Article 116. Additional annual paid leaves

Additional annual paid leaves are granted to employees involved in work with harmful and (or) dangerous labour conditions, to employees involved in work of a specific character, to employees having irregular working hours, to employees working in the Far North regions and territories equated with them as well as in other cases provided for by federal laws.

Based on their production and financial abilities, organizations may establish additional leaves for the employees, if no other provisions are made by federal laws. The procedure and terms of granting these leaves are defined by collective agreements or by local standard acts.

Article 117 Additional annual paid leave granted to employees involved in work with harmful and (or) dangerous labour conditions

The additional annual paid leave is granted to employees involved in work with harmful and (or) dangerous labour conditions: in underground mining operations and open mining operations in opencast collieries and quarries, in radioactive contamination zones and in other kinds of work connected with incurable unfavourable influence of harmful physical, chemical, biological and other factors on human health.

Lists of productions, jobs and posts working in which gives the right to have an additional paid leave for work with harmful and (or) dangerous labour conditions as well as the minimal duration of this leave and conditions of its granting are approved by the Government of the Russian Federation, taking into consideration the opinion of Russia's tripartite panel on social and labour relationship adjustment.

Article 118. Additional annual paid leave for the specific character of work

Some categories of employees, whose work is connected with special features of the fulfilled work, are granted an annual additional paid leave.

The list of categories of employees who are to be granted an additional annual paid leave for the specific character of work, as well as the minimal duration of this leave and conditions of its granting are defined by the Government of the Russian Federation.

Article 119. Additional annual paid leave granted to employees with irregular working hours

Employees having irregular working hours are granted an additional annual paid leave, the duration of which is defined by the collective agreement or the internal labour regulations of the organization and which cannot be less than three calendar days. When this leave is not granted, hours worked above the standard working hours are to be compensated as overtime work with the written consent of the employee.

The procedure and terms of granting the additional annual paid leave to employees with irregular working hours are established by the Government of the Russian Federation in organizations financed from the federal budget, they are established by the authorities of the Russian Federation subject in organizations financed from the budget of the Russian Federation subject, and they are established by local self-management authorities in organizations financed from the local budget.

Article 120. Calculating the annual paid leave duration

The duration of main and additional annual paid leaves is calculated in calendar days and is not limited with the maximum limit. Non-working holidays falling on the period of the leave are not included into the number of calendar days and are not paid.

To calculate the total duration of the annual paid leave, additional paid leaves are added to the main annual paid leave.

Article 121. Calculating the length of service, giving the right to the main annual paid leave

The length of service, giving the right to the main annual paid leave includes:

- actual period of work;
- time when the employee did not actually work, but his working place (post) was reserved for him in accordance with federal laws, the annual paid leave period including;
- period of the involuntary absence from work at illegal dismissal or suspension and subsequent reinstatement in the same post;
- other periods of time, stipulated by the collective agreement, labour agreement or local standard act of the organization.
- The length of service, giving the right to the main annual paid leave does not include:
 - period of the employee's absence from work without good reasons, and because of his suspension from work in cases provided for by Article 76 of the present Code as well;
 - period of leaves granted for taking care of the child until attaining the age, established by the law;
 - period of leaves without pay, granted on the employee's request, exceeding seven calendar days.

The length of service, giving the right to the additional annual paid leaves for the work with harmful and (or) dangerous labour conditions only includes the actual periods of work under these conditions.

Article 122. The procedure of granting annual paid leaves

The employee must be granted a paid leave annually.

During the first year of work the employee acquires the right to go on leave after six months of his continuous work in the given organization. The employee might be granted a paid leave before the six months' period expiration as well, under the agreement of the parties.

Before the expiration of six months' period of continuous work the paid leave must be granted upon application to:

- women before the maternity leave or right after it;
- employees under eighteen years old;

- employees who adopted a child (children) under three months;
- in other cases provided for by federal laws.

Leaves for the second and subsequent years of work may be granted at any time of the working year in accordance with the priority of granting annual paid leaves, established in the given organization.

Article 123. The priority of granting annual paid leaves

The priority of granting annual paid leaves is established annually in accordance with the schedule of leaves, which is to be approved by the employer, considering the opinion of the elected trade union body of the given organization, not later than two weeks before the beginning of the calendar year.

The schedule of leaves is obligatory both for the employer and the employee.

The employee should be informed of the time of the leave not later than two weeks before its beginning.

Some categories of employees are granted their annual paid leaves according to their wish at the time suitable for them in cases provided for by federal laws. The husband may be given his annual paid leave by his request during his wife's maternity leave, regardless the period of his continuous work in the given organization.

Article 124. The extension or shifting the annual paid leave

The annual paid leave must be extended in the case of:

- temporary disability of the employee;
- employee's performance of state duties during the annual paid leave, if the law provides for his release from work for that;
- in other cases provided for by laws, and local standard acts of the organization.

Under the agreement between the employee and the employer the annual paid leave may be shifted to some other time, if the employee did not get the payment for this leave in due time or if the employee was informed of the time of the leave less than two weeks before its beginning.

In exceptional cases when granting a leave to the employee in the current working year may have an adverse effect on the normal progress of work of the organization, it is allowed to shift the leave to the next working year. It should be noted here that the leave must be used within 12 months after finishing that working year for which it is granted.

It is banned not to grant the annual paid leave for two successive years, as well as not to grant the annual paid leave to employees under eighteen years old and employees involved in work with harmful and (or) dangerous labour conditions.

Article 125. Dividing the annual paid leave into parts. Recall from the leave

Under the agreement between the employer and the employee the annual paid leave may be divided into parts. In this case at least one of the parts of this leave cannot be shorter than 14 calendar days.

The employee may be recalled from the leave only with his consent. The unused part of the leave should be granted to the employee at his or her option at the convenient time during the current working year or it may be attached to the leave in the next working year.

It is not allowed to recall from the leave employees under eighteen years old, expectant mothers and employees involved in work with harmful and (or) dangerous labour conditions.

Article 126. Replacing the annual paid leave with money compensation

The part of the leave exceeding 28 calendar days may be replaced with money compensation on employee's written application.

It is not allowed to replace the leave with money compensation to expectant mothers and employees under eighteen years old, as well as to employees involved in hard work and work with harmful and (or) dangerous labour conditions.

Article 127. Exercising the right to the leave at the employee's dismissal

At the dismissal the employee is paid money compensation for all the unused leaves.

On the employee's written application the unused leaves may be given to him or her with the subsequent dismissal (excluding cases of dismissal for guilty actions), the last day of the leave being considered the day of dismissal.

At dismissal due to the expiration of the labour contract the leave with a subsequent dismissal may be granted also when the time of the leave exceeds the term of validity of this contract in full or in part. In this case the last day of the leave is also considered the day of dismissal.

When being granted a leave with the subsequent dismissal at the cancellation of the labour contract on the initiative of the employee, this employee has the right to withdraw his or her application for dismissal before the day of the beginning of the leave, unless another employee is transferred to the post.

Article 128. Leave without pay

Under family circumstances or for other good reasons the employee may be given, on the written request, a leave without pay, the duration of which is determined under the agreement between the employee and the employer.

The employer on the basis of the employee's written application must grant a leave without pay to:

- participants of the Great Patriotic War - up to 35 calendar days during a year;
- working pensioners receiving old-age pension - up to 14 calendar days during a year;

SECTION VI. RATE SETTING AND REMUNERATION OF LABOUR

CHAPTER 20. GENERAL STATEMENTS

Article 129. Main concepts and definitions

Remuneration of labour is a system of relations having concern with the employer's establishment and provision of payments to employees for their labour in accordance with laws, other standard legal acts, collective agreements, contracts, local standard acts and labour contracts.

The salary or wages is a reward for labour depending on the employee's qualifications, the complexity, amount, quality and terms of work fulfilled, as well as payments of a compensation and stimulation character.

The minimum wages (the minimum amount of remuneration of labour) is the amount of monthly wages guaranteed by the federal law for labour of an unqualified employee, who has completely worked out working time rate while performing simple work under normal labour conditions.

The basic wage or salary rate is a fixed remuneration of labour of an employee for fulfilment of the labour rate (labour duties) of a definite complexity (qualifications) for a time unit.

Work rating is the ascription of work kinds to different wage categories or qualification categories depending on the work complexity.

The wage category is a value, reflecting the work complexity and the employee's skills.

The skill category is a value, reflecting the level of the employee's vocational training.

The tariff scale is an aggregate of wage categories of work (professions, posts), defined depending on the work complexity and the employee's skill characteristics with the help of tariff coefficients.

The tariff system is an aggregate of standards, which are used to differentiate salaries or wages of different categories of employees.

Article 130. Main state guarantees of remuneration of labour to employees

The system of main state guarantees of remuneration of labour to employees includes:

1. the amount of the minimum remuneration of labour in the Russian Federation;
2. the amount of the minimum base wage rate of employees of budget-financed organizations in the Russian Federation;
3. measures to provide a higher level of the real wage content;
4. limiting the list of grounds and amounts of deductions from wages under the employer's order, as well as the amount of taxation of incomes on the base of wages;
5. limiting the remuneration in kind;
6. providing the employee's receiving wages in case of the employer's cessation of activities and his insolvency in accordance with federal laws;
7. state supervision and control of complete and timely payment of wages and realization of state guarantees of remuneration of labour;
8. the employers' responsibility for infringement of requirements, stipulated by the present Code, laws, other standard legal acts, collective agreements and contracts;
9. terms and order of priority in paying wages.

Article 131. Forms of remuneration of labour

Wages are to be paid in a monetary form in the currency of the Russian Federation (in rubles).

In accordance with the collective agreement or labour contract, under the written employee's request, the remuneration of labour may be effected in other forms, which do not contradict the legislation of the Russian Federation and international treaties of the Russian Federation. The proportion of the wages paid in non-monetary terms cannot exceed 20 per cent of the total amount of the wages.

It is not allowed to pay wages in terms of alcohol drinks, narcotic, toxic, poisonous and harmful substances, weapons, ammunition and other subjects being under bans or limitations for their free rotation.

Article 132. Payment in accordance with labour

Every employee's wages depend on his or her qualifications, complexity of work executed, the amount and quality of the input labour, and are not limited by the maximum point.

Any discrimination when establishing and changing the amount of wages and other terms of remuneration of labour is banned.

CHAPTER 21. WAGES

Article 133. Establishing the minimum wages

The minimum wage amount is established simultaneously on the whole territory of the Russian Federation by the federal law and it cannot be lower than the amount of the cost of living of an able-bodied person.

The monthly wages of an employee, who worked standard labour hours and carried out labour standard (labour duties), cannot be lower than the minimum amount of remuneration of labour established by the federal law.

When paying on the base of the standard tariff system the amount of base wage rate of the first category cannot be lower than the minimum amount of remuneration of labour.

The minimum amount of remuneration of labour does not include extra payments and rises, bonuses and other encouraging payments, as well as payments for work under conditions, different from normal, for work in special climatic conditions and on the territories, exposed to radioactive contamination, as well as other compensation and social payments.

The order of calculating the cost of living and its amount is established by the federal law.

Article 134. Providing the increase in the real content of wages

Provision of the increase in the real content of wages includes pay indexation in connection with the price increase for consumer goods and services. In companies financed by certain budgets indexation is made according to the law or other standard legal acts. In other types of companies indexation is made according to the collective agreement, contracts or the local standard act of the company.

Article 135. Wage establishing

Systems wages, base wage rates, salaries, different kinds of payments are established:

- for the employees of the budget-financed companies by appropriate laws or other standard legal acts;
- for the employees of the companies with mixed financing (budget financing, and revenues from business activities) by laws, other standard legal acts, collective agreements, contracts, local standard acts of companies;
- for the employees of other types of companies by collective agreements, contracts, local standard acts of the company, labour contracts.

The system of remuneration and encouragement of labour, including payment rise for working at nights, at weekends and on non-working holidays, payment for overtime work and other cases is established by the employer considering the opinion of the elected trade union body of this company.

The terms of remuneration of labour, defined by the labour agreement cannot be worsened as compared to the ones established by the present Code, laws, other standard legal acts, the collective agreement, contracts.

The terms of remuneration of labour defined by the collective agreement, contract, local standard acts of the company cannot be worsened as compared to the ones established by the present Code, laws and other standard legal acts;

Article 136. Procedure, place and terms of paying wages

When paying wages the employer is obliged to inform each employee in written form about the components of the wages earned by him within a certain period of time, the amount, and the reasons for the deductions from payment as well as about the total sum of money to be paid.

The form of the pay sheet is to be approved by the employer considering the opinion of the employees' representative body.

As a rule the wages are paid to the employee in the place of his fulfilling the work or they are transferred to the account in the bank on the terms defined by the collective agreement or labour contract.

The place and the terms of paying wages in a non-monetary form are defined by the collective agreement or labour contract.

The wages are paid directly to the employee, except the cases when some other form of payment is stipulated by the law or the labour agreement.

The wages are to be paid at least once a fortnight on the day defined by the internal labour regulations of the company, the collective agreement or labour contract.

For some categories of employees other terms of wages payment can be defined by the federal law.

When the days of payment coincide with a day off or non-working holidays wages are to be paid the day before.

The vacation pay is to be made not later than three days before its beginning.

Article 137. Limitations on the deductions from wages

Deductions from the employee's wages can be made only in cases stipulated by the present Code or other federal laws.

Deductions from the employee's wages to repay his debt to the employer can be made:

- to compensate the advance payment which was paid to the employee on account of a salary but which was not worked off;
- to pay off the advance payment which was paid as a business trip or relocation allowance and was not spent or returned in time, as well as in other cases;
- to return the sums excessively paid to the employee due to calculation errors as well as the sums excessively paid to the employee in case of admitting the employee's guilt in breaking labour regulations by the body for considering individual labour disputes (Article 155, part III) or for idle time. (Article 157, part III);
- at the dismissal of the employee before the end of the working year on account of which he has already received the annual paid leave, for the days of the leave which have not been worked out. Deductions for these days are not made if the employee is dismissed on the grounds stipulated in Article 81, point 1, 2; point 3a and in point 4;
- Article 83, points 1, 2, 5, 6 and 7 of the present Code.

In cases stipulated by paragraphs two, three, and four of part two of this Article the employer has the right to take a decision to deduct from the employee's payment not later than a month after the date defined for an advance payment return, payment of the debt or incorrectly calculated payment and on condition that the employee does not dispute the reasons and amounts of the deductions.

Wages excessively paid to the employee (including the cases when laws or other standard legal acts were used incorrectly) cannot be charged except for the cases:

- of a calculation error;
- if the body for considering individual labour disputes admits the employee's guilt in non-fulfillment of labour rates (Article 155, part III) or in idle time (Article 157 part III);

- if wages were excessively paid to the employee in connection with his illegal actions, defined by the court.

Article 138. Limitations on the amount of deductions from wages

The total sum of all deductions from every wage payment cannot exceed 20 per cent and in cases specified by federal laws this sum cannot exceed 50 per cent of the wages which is due to the employee.

When withholding from wages on several execution papers, 50 per cent of the wages should be left for the employee in any case.

Limitations defined by this Article do not apply to deductions from wages when servicing reformatory work, charging alimony for under-aged children, compensations for the injury to the employee's health caused by the employer, compensations for the loss of the bread-winner due to his death and compensations for the damage caused by a crime. The amount of deductions from wages cannot exceed 70 per cent in these cases.

Deductions from wages are not allowed if federal laws do not make provisions for such deductions.

Article 139. Calculation of the average wages

There is a common calculation procedure which is defined by this Code for all cases of calculating the average wages.

To calculate the average wages all types of payments stipulated by the system of remuneration of labour in the company are used regardless the sources of payment.

In any working schedule the calculation of the average employee's wages is made on the base of his actually calculated wages and his actually worked out time for the 12 months preceding the moment of payment.

The average daily wages to pay for the leaves and to compensate for the unused leave are calculated for the last three calendar months by dividing the calculated sum of the wages by 3 and by 29.6 (the average monthly number of calendar days).

The average daily payment to pay for the leave given in working days in cases stipulated by the present Code as well as to pay compensations for unused leaves is calculated by dividing the sum of the calculated wages by the number of working days according to the six days' working week calendar.

The collective agreement can make provision for other periods for calculating the average wages as well, if it does not worsen the employees' situation.

The peculiarities of the procedure for calculating the average wages set by this Article are defined by the Government of the Russian Federation considering the opinion of Russia's tripartite panel on social and labour relationship adjustment.

Article 140. Payment at dismissal

On termination of the labour contract all the sums, which are due to the employee by the employer are paid on the day of the employee's dismissal. If the employee did not work on the dismissal day, the corresponding sums must be paid not later than on the next day after presenting by the dismissed employee the demand for paying.

In case of a dispute about the amount of the sums which have to be paid to the employee at his dismissal the employer is obliged to pay the sum undisputed by him on the day stipulated in this Article.

Article 141. Payment of wages not received by the day of the employee's death

The wages not received by the day of the employee's death are to be paid to the members of his family or the individual who was dependent on the deceased for support on the day of his death. The wages are to be paid within a week from the day of submitting the required documents to the employer.

Article 142. Responsibility of the employer for breaking the time of payment of wages and other sums which are due to the employee

The employee and (or) representatives of the employer authorized by him in accordance with established procedure who committed the delay in payment of wages and other violations of remuneration of labour carry responsibility according to the present Code and other federal laws.

In case of delay in payment for the period exceeding 15 days, having submitted a written notification to the employer The employee has the right to suspend work for the whole period until the payment of the delayed sum. Suspension of work is not allowed:

- in periods of introducing the state of emergency, martial law or special measures in accordance with the laws on the state of emergency;
- in bodies and organizations of Armed Forces of the Russian Federation, other military, militarized and other units and organizations responsible for the country defence and security of the state, wrecking, search and rescue, and fire prevention operations, work on prevention or liquidations of natural disasters and emergency situations, in law-enforcement bodies;

- in organizations directly servicing extremely dangerous types of production and equipment;
- in organizations connected with the provision of vital activity for people (power supply, central heating, water supply, gas supply, communications, ambulance and first medical aid).

Article 143. Tariff system of remuneration of labour

Tariff system of remuneration of labour includes: base wage rates (salaries), tariff scale, tariff coefficients.

The complexity of operations to be fulfilled is defined on the basis of their rating.

Work rating and the awarding of wage categories to the employee is done in accordance with the Common Rate Book for Work and Workers' Jobs, the Common Qualification Book of Posts for Executives, Specialists and Clerks. These books and rules of their usage are approved in accordance with the procedure established by the government of the Russian Federation.

Tariff system of remuneration of labour for the employees of the organizations financed from budgets of all levels is established on the basis of the common tariff scale for remuneration of labour of budgetary worker which is approved in accordance with the procedure established by the federal law and which is the guarantee of remuneration of labour of budgetary workers. Tariff system of remuneration of labour of employees in other organizations may be defined by collective agreements, contracts considering common rate books and state guarantees of remuneration of labour.

Article 144. Stimulating payments

The employer has the right to establish different premium systems, stimulating extra payments and allowances considering the opinion of the employees' representative body. The abovementioned systems may be established by collective agreements as well.

The procedure and terms of using stimulating and compensating payments (extra payments, premiums, allowances) in the organizations financed from the federal budget are defined by the Government of the Russian Federation, in organizations financed from the budget of a subject of the Russian Federation they are defined by the bodies of state power of this subject of the Russian Federation, and in the organizations financed from the local budget they are defined by the bodies of local self-management.

Article 145. Remuneration of labour of company directors, their deputies and chief accountants

Remuneration of labour of company directors, their deputies and chief accountants in organizations financed from the federal budget is made in accordance with procedure and in the amounts defined by the Government of the Russian Federation, and in the organizations financed from the budget of a subject of the Russian Federation it is made by the bodies of state power of this subject of the Russian Federation and in the organizations financed from the local budget it is made by the bodies of local self-management.

The amount of remuneration of labour of directors, their deputies and chief accountants of other organizations is defined on the agreement of the parties of the collective agreement.

Article 146. Remuneration of labour under special conditions

Remuneration of labour of employees involved in hard work, in work with harmful, dangerous and other special labour conditions is made in increased amounts.

Remuneration of labour of employees involved in work in the localities with special climatic conditions is also made in increased amounts.

Article 147. Remuneration of labour of employees involved in hard work, in work with harmful and (or) dangerous and other special labour conditions

Remuneration of labour of employees involved in hard work, in work with harmful and (or) dangerous and other special labour conditions is made in increased amounts as compared to base wage rates (salaries) established for various jobs with standard labour conditions, but not lower than the amounts defined by laws and other standard legal acts.

The list of kinds of hard work, jobs with harmful and (or) dangerous and other special labour conditions is defined by the Government of the Russian Federation considering the opinion of Russia's tripartite panel on social and labour relationship adjustment. Pay rise on the abovementioned grounds is made by the results of the attestation of working places.

The exact amounts of increased wages are defined by the employer considering the opinion of the employees' representative body or by the collective agreement, labour contract.

Article 148. Remuneration of labour for the jobs in the localities with special climatic conditions

Remuneration of labour for the jobs in localities with special climatic conditions is made in accordance with the procedure and in the amounts not lower than those defined by laws and other standard legal acts.

Article 149. Remuneration of labour in other cases of performing work under conditions different from normal

When performing work under labour conditions different from normal (performing work of different qualifications, job combining, work beyond the normal length of working hours, work at night, on non-working holidays and other cases), the employee is paid extra allowances stipulated by the collective agreement, labour contract. The amount of extra allowances cannot be lower than those established by laws or other standard legal acts.

Article 150. Remuneration of labour when performing work requiring different qualifications

When the employee with payment per hour performs work of different qualifications he is paid as for the work requiring the higher qualifications.

When the employee with a piece-rate pay performs work of different qualifications he is paid at the rates of the work he performs.

In cases when considering the type of production the employee with a piece-rate pay is requested to perform work rated lower than his awarded grade the employer is obliged to pay the difference between the grades.

Article 151. Remuneration of labour when combining jobs and performing the duties of a temporarily absent employee

- employees taking full-time training in secondary professional education institutions having a state accreditation and combining work and study to take intermediate attestation - 10 calendar days during an academic year, to prepare and defend the final qualification paper and to take final state exams - two months, to take final state exams - one month.

Once during an academic year the employer pays for a return ticket to the place of the location of this education institution to the employees taking training by correspondence in educational institutions of secondary professional education having a state accreditation in the amount of 50 per cent of the fare.

The employees taking training by correspondence or full-time and by correspondence (evening) training in secondary professional education institutions having a state accreditation may have a working week shortened by 7 hours, at their request, for the period of ten academic months before the beginning of preparing a degree thesis. During the period of relieving of work the employees are paid 50 per cent of the average wages for their main work but not less than the minimum amount of remuneration of labour.

On the agreement between the parties of the labour contract the working hours may be reduced by giving the employee one day off a week or by shortening the length of working hours during the week.

Guarantees and compensations for employees combining work and study in secondary professional education institutions which do not have a state accreditation are established by the collective agreement or labour contract.

Article 175. Guarantees and compensations for the employees studying in educational institutions of elementary professional training

The employees studying successfully in educational institutions of elementary professional training regardless their organizational and legal forms are given additional leaves with preservation of the average wages for taking examinations for the period of 30 calendar days during one year.

Guarantees and compensations for the employees combining work and study in educational institutions of elementary professional training which do not have a state accreditation are defined by the collective agreement or the labor contract

Article 176. Guarantees and compensations for the employees studying in evening (shift) general educational institutions

The employees studying successfully in evening (shift) general educational institutions having a state accreditation regardless their organizational and legal forms are given by the employer additional leaves preserving the average wages for taking final exams in the IX form for the period of 9 calendar days, and in the XI (XII) form for the period of 22 calendar days.

Guarantees and compensations for the employees combining work and study in evening (shift) general education institutions that don't have a state accreditation are defined by a labor or collective contract.

The employees studying in evening (shift) general education institutions may have a working week shortened by one day at their request or by the number of working hours corresponding to this day. During the period of relieving of work these employees are paid 50 per cent of the average wages for their main job, but not less than the minimum amount of remuneration of labour.

Article 177. Procedure of granting guarantees and compensations to the employees combining work and study Guarantees and compensations for the employees combining work and study are to be granted on receiving an education of the appropriate level for the first time.

Annual paid leaves can be added to the additional leaves stipulated by Articles 173-176 of the present Code on the agreement between the employer and the employee.

The employee combining work and study in two educational institutions simultaneously may be granted guarantees and compensations only in connection with studying in one of these educational institutions (on the employee's choice).

CHAPTER 27. GUARANTEES AND COMPENSATIONS FOR THE EMPLOYEES ON CANCELLING THE LABOUR CONTRACT

Article 178. Dismissal allowances

On canceling the labour contract in connection with liquidation of the organization (Article 81 point 1) or reducing the number of permanent staff (Article 81 point 2) the employee to be dismissed is paid a dismissal allowance in the amount of the average monthly wages. His or her average monthly wages are preserved for the period of taking up a job but not more than for two months from the date of dismissal (considering a dismissal allowance).

In exceptional cases the average monthly wages are preserved for the employee during the third month from the date of dismissal on the base of the decision made by the employment agency providing that the employee applied to this employment agency within two weeks after dismissal but was not placed in a job.

The dismissal allowance in the amount of the average wages for two weeks' period is to be paid on canceling the contract in connection with:

- the employee's non-conforming to the post held or the work being done due to poor health which hinders further fulfilling the work (Article 81, point 3a);
- ordering the employee to join the army or sending him to an alternative civil service (Article 83, point 1);
- the employee's reinstatement in the job which he did before (Article 83, point 2);
- the employee's refusal to be transferred due to the employer's moving to another locality (Article 77, point 9).

The collective agreement or labour contract may stipulate other cases of paying dismissal allowance as well as establish increased amounts of dismissal allowances.

Article 179. Preferential right to retain the job on reducing the number of staff of the organization

On reducing the number of staff, employees having higher qualifications and higher productivity are granted a preferential right to retain the job.

If employees have equal qualifications and productivity rates the preference is given to:

- married employees having two or more dependants (disabled members of the family who are dependent on the employee for support or who receive assistance from him which is the only source of means of subsistence for them);
- employees in whose families there are no other employees having independent earnings;
- employees who got a maiming in work or a professional disease in this organization;

- invalids of the Great Patriotic War and invalids of military actions in defending the Motherland;
- employees sent by the employer to improve their qualifications while continuing their work.

The collective agreement may stipulate other categories of employees who may be granted the preferential right to retain the post while having equal qualifications and productivity rates with others.

Article 180. Guarantees and compensations for the employees in closing down an organization, reducing the number of staff

When reducing the number of permanent employees or the staff in the organization the employer is obliged to offer an employee another available job (a vacant post) in the same organization according to his qualifications.

The employees are to be warned about the forthcoming dismissal resulting from liquidation of the organization or reducing the number of permanent employees or the staff in the organization, personally, putting his sign for the notice, two months at latest before the dismissal.

The employer has the right to cancel the labour contract with the employee without a warning about his dismissal two months at latest before the dismissal, with the simultaneous payment of additional compensation in the amount of two months' average wages with the employee's written consent.

Under the threat of mass redundancies the employer considering the opinion of the elected trade union body takes necessary measures stipulated by the present Code, other federal laws, the collective agreement, the contract.

Article 181. Guarantees to the director of an organization, his deputies and the chief accountant on canceling the labour contract in connection with the change of the owner of an organization

In case of canceling the labour contract with the director of the organization, his deputies and the chief accountant in connection with the change of the owner of the organization the new owner is obliged to pay a compensation in the amount not less than three average monthly salaries to the said employees.

CHAPTER 28. OTHER GUARANTEES AND COMPENSATIONS

Article 182. Guarantees on transferring the employee to another permanent less paid job

When transferring the employee to another permanent less paid job in connection with the medical certificate stating that he needs another job, his previous average wages are preserved for him for the period of one month from the date of transference, and when transferring results from maiming at work, a professional disease or other damage to health connected with work, the previous average wages are preserved until defining a stable loss of the professional ability to work or until the employee's recovery.

Article 183. Guarantees for employees at temporary disability

At temporary disability the employer is to pay the employee a sick leave allowance in accordance with the federal law.

The amounts of sick leave allowances and terms of their payment are defined by the federal law.

Article 184. Guarantees and compensations in case of industrial accidents and professional diseases

In case of damage to health or the employee's death resulted from the industrial accident or the professional disease, the employee (his family) is to be paid the lost earnings (income) as well as extra costs for medical social and professional rehabilitation associated with the health damage or the appropriate costs in view of the employee's death.

Types, amounts and terms of granting guarantees and compensations in these cases are defined by the federal law.

Article 185. Guarantees for the employees who are sent to medical examination

The employees who are obliged to undergo medical examination in accordance with the present Code are to be paid the average wages for the period of undergoing medical examination.

Article 186. Guarantees and compensations for the employees in case of their giving blood and its components

The employee is released from work on the day of giving blood and its components as well as on the day of medical examination connected with it.

If the employee came to work on the day of giving blood on the agreement with the employer (except hard work and work with harmful and (or) dangerous labour conditions when the employee's coming to work is impossible) he is to be given another day off at his request.

In case of giving blood and its components during the period of the annual paid leave, on a day off or on a non-working holiday the employee is to be given another day off at his request.

After each day of giving blood and its components the employee is to be given an additional day off. This day off may be added to the annual paid leave at the employee's request or used at other time within the calendar year after the day of giving blood and its components.

In case of giving blood and its components on the gratuitous basis the employer is to preserve for the employee his average wages for the days of giving blood and the granted days off.

Article 187. Guarantees and compensations for employees who are sent by the employer to improve their qualifications

When the employer sends the employee to improve his or her qualifications with giving up his or her work the employer reserves the employee's working place (post) and the average wages for the main job. The employees who are sent to improve their qualifications with giving up work to another locality are paid travelling allowance in accordance with the procedure and in the amounts provided for the employees sent to business trips.

Article 188. Compensation for expenses when using personal property of the employee

When the employee uses his personal property with the employer's consent and knowledge and in the employer's interests the employee is to be paid compensation for the use, wearout (depreciation) of the tool, personal transport, equipment and other technical means and materials belonging to the employee, as well as compensation for costs resulted from their use. The amount of compensations for expenses is defined by the agreement of the parties of the labour contract expressed in writing.

SECTION VIII. LABOUR ROUTINE. LABOUR DISCIPLINE

CHAPTER 29. GENERAL STATEMENTS

Article 189. Labour routine and labour discipline in the organization

Labour discipline means following the rules of behaviour, defined by the present Code, other laws, the collective agreement, agreements, the labour contract, local standard acts of the organization, which is obligatory for all the employees.

In accordance with the present Code, laws, other standard legal acts, the collective agreement, agreements, local standard acts containing labour law norms, and labour contract, the employer is obliged to create conditions for maintenance of labour discipline by employees.

Labour routine in the organization is defined by internal labour regulations.

Internal labour regulations of the organization are a local standard act of the organization regulating in accordance with the present Code and other federal laws the procedure of recruiting and dismissing employees, main rights, duties and responsibilities of parties of the labour contract, working day routine, time for rest, means of encouragement and punishment applied to employees as well as other points of regulating labour relations in the organization.

For some categories of employees there are rules and regulations on discipline approved by the Government of the Russian Federation in accordance with federal laws.

Article 190. Procedure of Establishing Rules of Organization's Internal Labor Regulations

Rules of organization's internal labor regulations are established by the employer with opinion of organization employees' representative body taken into account.

Rules of organization's internal labor regulations usually present an addendum to the collective agreement.

CHAPTER 30. LABOR DISCIPLINE

Article 191. Labor Stimulation

The employer stimulates the employees diligently performing their work duties (thanks them officially, pays them a merit bonus, awards them with valuable presents, certificates of honor, puts them forward for the title "Best in Profession").

Other kinds of employees' good work stimulation are specified in the collective agreement or in the rules of organization's internal labor regulations, as well as in the charters and discipline regulations. For special labor services to the society and state employees can be put forward for state awards.

Article 192. Disciplinary Penalties

For committing disciplinary delinquency, i.e. for employee's non-execution or improper execution, through his own fault, of his professional duties the employer is entitled to impose upon him the following disciplinary penalties:

1. reprimand;
2. reproof;
3. dismissal on the applicable ground.

Federal laws, charters and discipline regulations for certain categories of employees may also presuppose other disciplinary penalties.

Disciplinary penalties that are not stated in federal laws, charters or discipline regulations are prohibited.

Article 193. Procedure of Imposing Disciplinary Penalties

Before imposing a disciplinary penalty upon the employee, the employer is to demand of him a written explanation. If the employee refuses to submit such an explanation, a statement is drawn up.

The employee's refusal to submit an explanation does not prevent imposition of a disciplinary penalty on him. A disciplinary penalty must be imposed on the employee within one month from the date the delinquency was discovered, excluding the time of employee's illness or leave, and the time necessary to consider the opinion of the employees' representative body.

A disciplinary penalty cannot be imposed on the employee after six months have passed from the date the delinquency was committed; if the penalty is based on the results of a revision, a financial and business activity inspection, or auditing, it cannot be imposed after two years have passed from the date the delinquency was committed. The aforementioned periods do not include the time of the criminal case procedures.

Only one disciplinary penalty may be imposed on the employee for each disciplinary delinquency.

The employer's order (direction) of imposing a disciplinary penalty upon an employee is announced to the latter against receipt within three working days from the date of issue. If the employee refuses to sign the order (direction), a statement is drawn up.

The employee can lodge a complaint against the disciplinary penalty in state labor inspections or bodies authorized to view individual trade disputes.

Article 194. Remission of Disciplinary Penalty

If a new disciplinary penalty is not imposed upon the employee within one year from the date the previous disciplinary penalty was imposed on him, he is considered to have no disciplinary penalties.

The employer has a right to remove the disciplinary penalty from the employee before one year has passed from the date the disciplinary penalty was imposed on the latter, of employer's own accord, upon the employee's own request or that of his immediate chief or the employees' representative body.

Article 195. Calling to Disciplinary Account the Organization Head and His Deputies upon Demand of the Employees' Representative Body

The employer is to consider the employees' representative body application stating that labor laws and other normative legal acts, collective contract or agreement terms are being violated by the organization head and/or his deputies, and to report the results to the employees' representative body.

If there is justification for such violations, the employer is to impose upon the organization head and/or his deputies a disciplinary penalty, including their dismissal.

SECTION IX. PROFESSIONAL TRAINING, RETRAINING, AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT OF EMPLOYEES

CHAPTER 31. GENERAL STIPULATIONS

Article 196. Employer's rights and obligations with respect to personnel training and retraining

The employer defines the necessity of personnel professional training and retraining for own needs.

The employer carries out the employees' professional training, retraining, professional development, and learning a second profession in the organization, and if necessary, - in elementary, secondary, higher professional and additional educational institutions on conditions and in order that are stated in the collective contract, agreements, and labor contract.

The forms of the employees' professional training, retraining, and professional development, as well as the list of professions and specialities in demand are defined by the employer with opinion of the employees' representative body taken into account.

In certain cases that are stipulated in federal laws and other normative legal acts, the employer must carry out the employees' professional development, if it presents a condition allowing the employees to perform certain kinds of activities. The employer is to create necessary conditions for employees doing their professional training, allowing them to combine work with study, and to provide guarantees stipulated in this Code, other normative legal acts, the collective contract, agreements, and labor contract.

Article 197. Employees' Right for Professional Training, Retraining, and Professional Development

Employees have a right for professional training, retraining, and professional development, including learning new professions and specialities.

The aforementioned right is implemented by concluding an additional contract between the employee and employer.

CHAPTER 32. TRAINING AGREEMENT

Article 198. Training Agreement

The employer has a right to conclude a training agreement for professional training with a person seeking job, and a training agreement for in-service retraining with the organization employee.

Training agreement with a person seeking job is civil, and is regulated by the civil law and other acts stipulating propositions of civil law. Training agreement with the organization employee is additional to the labor contract, and is regulated by labor law and other acts stipulating propositions of labor contract.

Article 199. Contents of Training Agreement

A training agreement must contain the following: names of the parties; concrete profession, speciality, and qualification acquired by the trainee; the employer's obligation to provide the employee with opportunity to train in accordance with the training agreement; the employee's obligation to undergo training, and to work for the employer under labor contract, according to the acquired profession, speciality and qualification within the time period stated in the training agreement; the time of training; the employee's salary during the training period.

A training agreement may contain other terms defined by parties.

Article 200. Time and Form of Training Agreement

A training agreement is concluded for the time period necessary for acquiring the profession, speciality, and qualification.

A training agreement is concluded in written form in two exemplars.

Article 201. Validity of Training Agreement

A training agreement comes into force from the date stated in this agreement, and is valid within the time period for which it is concluded.

Validity time of a training agreement may be prolonged for the time of the trainee's illness, his participation in periodical military training, and in other statutory cases and cases statutable by normative legal acts.

Within validity time of a training agreement its contents may be changed only upon parties' mutual agreement.

Article 202. Organization Forms of Training

Training is organized in individual, brigade, course and other forms.

Article 203. Time of Training

Time of training during the week must not exceed working time norms defined for employees of corresponding age, profession, and speciality when performing corresponding kinds of work.

Employees doing their training in the organization may, upon mutual agreement with the employer, be excused of the work assigned to them by the labor contract or do this work on part-time basis.

Within validity time of the training agreement employees cannot be made to work overtime or sent on business trips that are not related to their training.

Article 204. Salary in the Period of Training

During the period of training trainees are paid a stipend in the amount stated in the training agreement and depending on the profession, speciality or qualification they are training for, but no less than the statutory floor wage.

The work done by the trainee during practical training is paid for according to the statutory rate.

Article 205. Application of Labor Legislation to Trainees

Labor legislation, including labor safety legislation, is applicable to trainees.

Article 206. Invalidity of Training Agreement Terms

Terms of a training agreement that contradict this Code, collective contract, and/or agreements are invalid and are not applicable.

Article 207. Trainees' Rights and Duties upon Completion of Training

Persons successfully completed their training, when concluding a labor contract with the employee under contract with whom they did their training, do not undergo a trial work period.

If upon completion of training the trainee defaults on his obligations under the training agreement without reasonable excuse, including setting to work, he, upon the employer's demand, returns him the stipend he received during the time of training, and compensates for other expenses related to the training the employer bore.

Article 208. Grounds for Terminating a Training Agreement

A training agreement is terminated on the grounds statutable for termination of a labor contract.

SECTION X. LABOR SAFETY

CHAPTER 33. GENERAL STIPULATIONS

Article 209. Basic Notions

Labor safety is a system of employees' life and health preservation in the process of their work activity, including legal, socioeconomic, efficiency, sanitary-and-hygiene, treatment-and-prophylactic, rehabilitational, and other measures.

Working conditions mean a set of industrial environment and labor process factors influencing employee's working capacity and health.

Harmful industrial factor is an industrial factor the influence of which on an employee may lead to his illness.

Dangerous industrial factor is an industrial factor the influence of which on an employee may lead to his trauma.

Safe working conditions mean working conditions excluding influence of harmful and/or dangerous industrial factors on employees; if such factors are present, the level of their influence on employees does not exceed statutory norms.

Working place is a place where the employee must be or where to he must arrive due to his work, and that is under the employer's direct or indirect control. Means of employees' individual and collective protection are technical means used to prevent or decrease influence upon employees of harmful and/or dangerous industrial factors, and to protect employees from contamination.

Conformity certificate of measures guaranteeing labor safety (safety certificate) is a document certifying conformance of measures taken by the organization in the sphere of labor safety to the statutory normative requirements of labor safety.

Industrial activity is a set of the employees' actions, including production and processing of various kinds of raw materials, construction, and service activities, with utilization of labor instruments necessary for turning the resources into the final product.

- the prosecutor's office according to the place, where the vessel is registered
- the federal executive power body managing fishery matters;
- the territorial associations of trade union organizations;
- the underwriter for mandatory social insurance against accidents in production and occupational diseases.

If there are cases of acute poisoning, the employer or his representative shall also advise the relevant sanitary & epidemiological supervision agency.

Article 229. Investigation procedure for accidents in production

To investigate a production accident in his organization, the employer shall immediately set up a commission comprising at least three people. The commission shall include a labor protection expert or a person appointed to be in charge for managing the work on labor protection by the employer's order, employer's representatives, representatives of the trade union body of other representative body commissioned by the employees, and the labor protection commissioner. The commission shall be headed by the employer or his authorized representative. The manager immediately responsible for work safety in the area/facility, where the accident took place, shall be not a member to the commission.

The investigation of a production accident at an employer's, who is a physical person, shall involve said employer or his authorized representative, a victim's proxy, and a labor protection expert, which can be also hired for the investigation on a contract basis.

The production accident, which happened to a person sent to carry out work at another employer's, shall be investigated by a commission set up by the employer, where the accident took place. An authorized representative of the employer, which had sent the person in question, shall be part of said commission. If said representative does not arrive or is tardy, that will not affect the time of the investigation.

The accident, which happened to an employee of the organization, which carries out works in an assigned area of another organization, shall be investigated and registered by the organization carrying out these works. In this case the commission, which has investigated the accident, shall inform the manager of the organization, at which premises these works were carried out, about its findings.

The accident, which happened to an employee, who combined his jobs doing the job for another employer, shall be investigated at the workplace, where the accident took place.

An accident in production, which took place as a result of a vehicle accident, shall be investigated by a commission set up by the employer. The commission must use the materials of the investigation carried out by the relevant government supervision and control agency.

Every employee or his authorized representative has the right to participate in person in the investigation of an accident in production, which happened to the employee.

To investigate a multiple accident in production, a heavy accident in production or a fatal accident, the commission shall also involve a public labor protection inspector, representatives of the executive power body of the Russian Federation's subject or local self-government body (by agreement), and a representative of the territorial association of trade union organizations. The employer shall set up the commission and approve its membership with the public labor protection inspector as the chairman.

At the request of the victim (or his relations, if the victim died) his proxy can participate in the investigation. In the case that the proxy does not participate in the investigation, the employer or his authorized representative, or the chairman of the commission shall acquaint the proxy with the investigation materials at the proxy's request.

In the event of acute poisoning or radioactive impact, which exceeded the established norms, the commission shall also include a representative of the relevant agency of the Russian Federation's sanitary & epidemiological service.

If the accident was a consequence of breaches in works affecting the assurance of nuclear, radioactive and engineering safety in nuclear energy facilities, the commission shall also include a representative of the territorial federal agency for federal supervision of nuclear and radioactive safety.

If an accident took place in organization and facilities accountable to territorial agencies of the federal mining and industrial supervision, the list of the commission members shall be approved by the manager of the relevant territorial agency. A representative of this agency shall be the chairman on the commission.

If there is a multiple accident in production, in which five or more lives have been lost, the commission shall also include representatives of the federal labor inspectorate, federal executive power body with regard to the specific affiliation and representative of the all-Russian trade union association. Chairman on the commission shall be chief public labor protection inspector with the relevant government labor inspectorate and in facilities accountable to a territorial agency of the federal mining and industrial supervision the manager of that territorial agency shall be the chairman. On board of a vessel the commission's membership shall be laid down by the federal executive power body managing transport matters or by the federal executive power body in charge of fishery according to the affiliation of the vessel.

If there are large-scale accidents, in which fifteen or more lives have been lost, the investigation shall be carried out by a commission, the membership of which shall be approved by the Government of the Russian Federation.

The investigation of the circumstances and causes of an accident in production, which only involved one person and did not fall into the category of heavy or fatal accidents, shall be carried out by the commission within three days.

The investigation of a multiple accident in production, a heavy accident in production or a fatal accident in production shall be carried out by the commission within fifteen days.

An accident in production, which the employer has not been advised of in due time or which did not result in the victim's inability to work at once, shall be investigated by the commission pursuant to the victim's or his proxy's application within one month, after said application has been filed.

Should additional verification of the circumstances of the accident, provision of the relevant medical and other findings be required, the time frames indicated in this article can be prolonged by the commission's chairman, however, not more than by fifteen days.

Every time an accident in production is investigated, the commission shall find and question the eyewitnesses of the incident and the persons, which committed breaches of regulatory labor protection requirements, obtain the necessary information from the employer and the explanations from the victim, if possible.

During the investigation of a production accident in an organization the employer shall secure at the request of the commission at his own expense the following activities:

- execution of engineering calculations, laboratory tests, trials and other expert works and involvement of experts for these purposes;
- taking photographs of the accident place and damaged objects, drawing up plans, sketches, and diagrams;
- provision of transport, an office, communications, protective clothing, protective footwear and other means of individual protection required to conduct the investigation.

If an accident in production at an employer, who is a physical person, is investigated, the actions and conditions required to conduct the investigation shall be determined by the chairman of the commission.

To investigate a multiple accident in production, a heavy accident in production or a fatal accident in production, the following documents shall be prepared:

- the employer's order to set up a commission for investigation of the accident;
- plans, sketches, diagrams, and - if required - photographs and video records of the accident place;
- the documents featuring the working place state and the presence of hazardous and harmful production factors;
- excerpts from labor protection briefing registration logs and protocols of examination of the victims' knowledge of labor protection;
- protocols of questioning eyewitnesses of the accident and officers, the victims' explanations;
- expert findings of specialists, laboratory test and experiment results;
- the medical findings about the nature and degree of the damage caused to the victim's health or the cause of his death, about whether the victim was intoxicated with

- alcohol, drugs or toxic substances at the moment, when the accident took place;
- copies of documents confirming that the victim has been provided with protective clothing, protective footwear and other means of individual protection in line with the prevailing norms;
 - excerpts from the directions of public labor protection inspectors and officers of the territorial government supervision agency (if the accident took place in an organization or facility accountable to this agency) issued in this production/facility previously and excerpts from trade union labor inspectors' demands to eliminate discovered breaches of regulatory labor protection requirements as well;
 - other documents at the discretion of the commission.

If the employer is a physical person, the list of materials to be submitted shall be determined by the chairman of the commission, which carried out the investigation.

On the grounds of the documents and materials gathered the commission shall state the circumstances and causes of the accident. It shall determine whether the victim was engaged in the employer's production activity at the moment, when the accident took place, and whether he was staying at the place of the accident exercising his labor duties. It shall qualify the accident as an accident in production or an accident not related to production, identify the persons, which have committed breaches of labor safety and protection, laws and other regulatory legal acts, and specify the actions aimed at the elimination of the causes and prevention of accidents in production.

If in the course of the investigation of an accident to an insured person the commission finds that gross carelessness of the insured person has aided in initiation or an increase of the damage caused to his health, then, taking into account the findings of the trade union body or other representative body of this organization authorized by the insured person, the commission shall determine the degree of the insured person's guilt in per cent.

The procedure of investigation of the accidents in production considering the peculiarities of individual branches and organizations and the forms of the documents required for investigation of the accidents in production shall be approved in line with the procedure established by the Government of the Russian Federation.

Article 230. Completion of materials on accidents in production and their registration

For every accident in production, which caused the necessity to transfer the employee according to the medical findings to a different job, loss of the employee's ability to work for not less than a day or his death, a statement of the accident in production shall be completed in two copies in the Russian language or both in the Russian language and the public language of the relevant Russian Federation's subject.

If there is a multiple accident in production, the statement shall be completed for each victim singly.

If the accident in production happened to an employee having a labor relationship with a different employer, the statement of the accident shall be completed in three copies, two of which along with the accident investigation documents and materials and the statement of the investigation shall be sent to the employer, with which the victim has/had a labor relationship. The third copy of the statement, investigation materials and documents shall be retained by the employer, where the accident took place.

If the accident in production involved an insured person, an extra copy of the statement of the accident in production shall be completed.

The results of investigation of the accidents in production shall be reviewed by the employer with the involvement of the trade union body of the relevant organization in order to make the decisions aimed at prevention of accidents in production.

The statement of an accident in production shall describe the details of the circumstances and causes of the accident in production and also indicate the persons having committed breaches of the labor safety and protection. If it is found that it was the insured person's gross carelessness that aided in initiation or an increase of the damage caused to his health, the statement shall indicate the insured person's guilt in per cent as determined by the commission having investigated the accident in production.

The statement of the accident in production shall be signed by the commission members, approved by the employer or his authorized representative, certified by the seal and registered in the log for registration of accidents in production.

Within three days after the statement of the accident in production has been approved, the employer or his authorized representative shall issue one copy of said statement to the victim or the victim's relations or proxy at their request, if there was a fatal accident in production. The second copy of the statement of the accident shall be stored at the victim's workplace at the moment of the accident in production for forty-five years. In insurance cases the employer shall send the third copy of the statement of the accident and the investigation materials to the underwriter's executive body (at the place where the insured person was registered).

Based on the results of investigation of a multiple accident in production, heavy accident in production or fatal accident in production, the commission (or the public labor protection inspector in established instances) shall complete a report about the investigation of the relevant accident in production.

The reports about the investigation of multiple accidents in production, heavy accidents in production, fatal accidents in production along with the investigation documents and materials attached to the relevant report and copies of statements of the accident in production for each victim shall be sent by the commission chairman within three days after their approval to the prosecutor's office, which has been informed of the accident in production and if there was an insurance case, these shall be also sent to the underwriter's executive body (at the place where the insured person was registered). Copies of said documents shall be also sent to the relevant government labor inspectorate and the territorial agency of the relevant federal supervision - for the accidents, which have taken place in the organizations/facilities accountable to them.

The commission chairman shall send copies of the reports about the investigation of multiple accidents in production, heavy accidents in production, and fatal accidents in production along with copies of the statements of the accident in production for every victim to the federal labor inspectorate and the affiliated federal executive power body for review of the status and causes of the industrial injuries in the Russian Federation and elaboration of the proposals on their prevention.

The following cases shall be investigated and qualified as accidents not associated with production, an arbitrary form report being completed:

- death due to a general disease or suicide confirmed in line with the established procedure by a health care establishment and investigation agencies;
- death or health damage, the single cause of which was (as stated in the findings of a health care establishment) alcoholic, narcotic or toxic intoxication (poisoning) of the employee not associated with any breaches of the engineering process flow, where technical alcohol, aromatic, narcotic and other similar substances are used;
- accident, which took place, while the victim was committing a misdemeanor, which contained signs of a criminal offence, according to the findings of law enforcement bodies.

The arbitrary form report along with the investigation materials shall be kept in storage for 45 years.

After the temporary victim's inability to work is expired, the employer or his authorized representative shall send to the relevant government labor inspectorate and to the territorial government supervision agency, if necessary, the information about the consequences of the accident in production and actions taken to prevent accidents.

About the accidents in production, which changed over, as the time elapsed, to the category of heavy or fatal accidents, the employer or his authorized representative shall report to the relevant government labor inspectorate, the relevant trade union body and to the territorial agencies of the relevant federal supervision, if the accidents took place in facilities accountable to them. The insurance cases shall be reported to the underwriter's executive body (at the place, where the insured person was registered).

If a hidden accident in production is discovered or a complaint, application or any other appeal of the victim, his proxy or the relations of a victim, which died as a result of the accident, stating their disagreement with the findings of the investigation commission is filed, and if there is also any information from the employer or his authorized representative about the consequences of an accident in production, after the temporary victim's inability to work is expired, the public labor protection inspector shall investigate the accident in production in line with the provisions of this article regardless of the prescription of the accident, involving the trade union labor inspector, as a rule, and a representative of another government supervision agency, if required.

The public labor protection inspector shall draw up a conclusion based on the results of the investigation and shall also issue directions, which shall be mandatory for compliance by the employer or his authorized representative.

The public labor protection inspector shall be entitled to oblige the employer or his authorized representative to complete a new statement of the accident in production, if the statement available has been completed with breaches or it does not correspond to the accident investigation materials. In this case the previous statement of the accident in production shall be considered null and void based on the employer's, his authorized representative's or public labor protection inspector's decision.

Article 231. Consideration of differences about investigation, completion and registration of accidents in production

Differences about the investigation, completion and registration of accidents in production, non-recognition of an accident by the employer or his authorized representative, refusal to investigate an accident and draw up the relevant statement, disagreement of the victim or his proxy with the content of this statement shall be considered by the relevant government labor protection agencies or court of justice. In these cases, filing a complaint shall be no reason for non-compliance with the public labor protection inspector's decisions by the employer or his authorized representative.

- participate in the development of drafts of labor protective bylaws and coordinate them according to the procedure, set by the government of the Russian Federation;
- petition respective bodies with charges referring to persons, guilty of infringement of laws and other legal acts, containing labor regulations and of concealment of industrial accidents.

Trade unions and their labor inspections, in the course of fulfillment of the said duties cooperate with the state bodies of supervision and control over the observance of laws and other legal acts, containing labor regulations.

Persons, authorized to protect trade union labor conditions (trustees) have the right to inspect the observance of labor protection regulations unhindered and present employers with notations, pertaining to elimination of infringements of labor protection regulations, binding in their action.

Article 371. Employer's decision, made considering the opinion of a trade union body.

Employer is making decisions with due consideration of the opinion of respective trade union body in cases, stipulated by this Code.

Article 372. The procedure of consideration of opinion of an elective trade union body, representing an organization employees' interests when approving local bylaws, containing labor regulations.

In cases, stipulated by this Code, employer submits a draft of a local bylaw, containing labor regulations and its substantiation to the elective trade union body, representing the interests of all or the majority of employees of a given organization, prior to making a decision.

Not later, than in five working days, after the obtainment of the said draft of local bylaw, the elective trade union body presents the employer with the motivated opinion, referring to the draft in written form.

In case the motivated opinion of the elective trade union body does not agree with the draft of a bylaw, or contains suggestions on its improvement, the employer can either agree with it, or must consult the elective trade union body with the purpose of arriving at mutually acceptable decision not later than in three days after the obtainment of the motivated opinion.

In case the decision is not reached, resulting disputes are entered on the records and the employer has the right to accept local bylaw, containing labor regulations, which can be appealed against in the respective state labor inspection or in court, while the elective trade union body has the right to initiate the procedure of a collective labor dispute, according to the procedure, set by this Code.

Upon the obtainment of a claim (statement) of the elective trade union body, state labor inspection must carry out the check not later than in a month after the obtainment of the claim and charge the employer with a binding directive, rendering the local bylaw ineffective in case any infringements are disclosed.

Article 373. The procedure of consideration of motivated opinion of an elective trade union body, in case of termination of labor contract, initiated by the employer

In case the decision is made, facilitating possible termination of labor contract in accordance with item 2, sub-item "b" of item 3 and item 5 of the Article 81 of this Code, with an employee, who is a member of a trade union, the employer submits a draft of an order, together with copies of document, substantiating such a decision to the respective elective trade union body.

The elective trade union body estimates the draft of the order and copies of documents in the period of seven working days and presents the employer with its motivated opinion in written form. The opinion, not presented in seven working days or unmotivated opinion is ignored by the employer.

In case the elective trade union body does not agree with the proposed decision of the employer, it consults the employer or his representative within three working days, with the results of consultations entered on the records. If the agreement of opinions is not reached after the consultations, the employer, after the expiry of the period of ten days since the day the draft of the order and copies of documents were submitted to the selective trade union body, has the right to make the final decision, which can be appealed against in the respective state labor inspection. State Labor Inspection processes the case of dismissal within ten days after the obtainment of the claim (statement), and in case of rendering it unlawful charges the employer with binding directive to restore the employee to his position, paying for the forced truancy.

Following the above described procedure does not deprive an employee or selective trade union body, representing his interests, the right to appeal against dismissal to the court. Equally the employer is not deprived of the right to appeal to the court against the directive of the state Labor Inspection.

The employer has the right to terminate labor contract not later than in a month after the obtainment of the motivated opinion of the selective trade union body.

Article 374. Guarantees for employees, members of elective trade union collegial bodies, who are fulltime workers.

Dismissal, initiated by the employer in compliance with item 2, sub-item "b" of item 3 and item 5 of the Article 81 of this Code, of heads (their deputies) of elective collegial bodies of an organization and its structural departments (no smaller than shops and equaling them), who are fulltime workers, is permissible, except in cases of standard dismissal procedure set, only with the consent of a superior elective trade union body, obtained in advance.

In case the superior elective trade union body is absent, the dismissal of said employees is carried out according to the procedure, set in Article 373 of this Code.

Members of elective trade union bodies, who are fulltime workers in any given organization, are subject to temporary relief from the fulfillment of their direct work duties as delegates of congresses and conferences, organized by trade unions and also for the purpose of participation in the work of elective trade union bodies. Temporary relief conditions and the procedure of salary payout for the period of participation in actions listed, is defined by the provisions of a collective contract, agreement.

Article 375. Guarantees for fulltime trade union workers, elected to trade union bodies.

The employee, relieved from the fulfillment of his direct work duties in connection with his election to the trade union body of a given organization is granted his former work (position) in the same organization after the end of his office term. In case of unavailability of such work (position), he is provided with an equivalent work (position). If an employee refuses the work (position) proposed, his labor contract is terminated according to item 7 of the Article 77 of this Code.

In case of unavailability of granting an adequate work (position) within the same organization in case of its reorganization or in case of its liquidation, the average monthly salary of an employee is preserved either by a legal representative of a given organization or by the all-Russian (interregional) trade union during the period of employment search, but not more than for six months and in cases of training or retraining - for the period of up to a year.

The term of work of fulltime trade union workers, elected to an elective trade union body of a given organization makes a part of the overall duration of their general or special work length.

An employee, relieved from the fulfillment of his direct working duties in connection with his election to an elective body of a primary trade union organization, has the same labor rights, guarantees and privileges as other employees of an organization in compliance with the provisions of a collective contract.

Article 376. Labor rights guarantees for employees, members of an elective trade union body

Termination of a labor contract, initiated by an employer according to item 2, sub-item "b" of item 3 and item 5 of the Article 81 of this Code, with the head of an elective trade union body of a given organization and his deputies in two years period after the end of their office term is permissible only according to the procedure, set by the Article 374 of this Code.

Article 377. Obligations of an employer as to the provision of conditions, facilitating the activity of an elective trade union body

An employer must provide elective bodies of primary trade union organizations, working in a given organization, a room for holding meetings, storage of documents, as well as provide a location, accessible by all employees, for the placement of relevant information. All provisions are to be made free of charge.

In an organization with more than 100 employees, an employer provides an elective trade union body, working in the organization at least one room, equipped with central heating and electricity, as well as office appliances, means of communication and necessary bylaws. All the provisions are made free of charge. Other provisions, improving work conditions of said trade union bodies may be stipulated by the collective contract.

An employer, in compliance with the stipulations of the collective contract, can provide an elective trade union body with the right to use free of charge buildings, installations, accommodation facilities and other objects, either belonging to or rented by the employer, as well as recreational facilities, sporting and health centers, necessary for the organization and implementation of cultural and health caring activity, aimed at employees and members of their families. Trade unions have no right to charge fees for the use of these facilities by employees, non-members of said trade unions, higher than those set for the members of the said trade unions.

In cases, stipulated by a collective contract, an employer allocates financial funds of a primary trade union organization for the provision of cultural and health caring activity.

Provided with written statements of employees, the members of a trade union, an employer makes a free of charge monthly transfer of trade union fees, subtracted from the salaries of employees, to the account of a trade union organization. The procedure of fees transfer is set by the provisions of a collective agreement. An employer has no right to delay the transfer of the fees said.

In organizations, guided by collective contracts, or in these, falling within the sphere of trade (inter-trade) contracts, employers, provided with written statement of employees, non-members of a trade union, make a monthly transfer of funds, subtracted from the salaries of said employees, to the account of a trade union organization on conditions and according to the procedure, stipulated by collective contracts, trade (inter-trade) contracts.

Salary of the head of an elective trade union body of an organization can be paid on account of funds of the organization to the amount, set by the collective contract.

Article 378. Responsibility for the infringement of rights of trade unions

Persons, infringing the rights and guarantees of activity of trade unions bear responsibility in compliance with the federal law.

CHAPTER 59. PROTECTION OF LABOR RIGHTS BY EMPLOYEES THEMSELVES

Article 379. Forms of protection

Pursuing the purposes of labor rights protection, an employee can refuse to fulfill the work, not stipulated by the collective contract as well as to refuse the fulfillment of work, posing an immediate threat for his life and health, except in cases, stipulated by federal laws. In the period of refusal from the fulfillment of said work all the rights of an employee, stipulated by this Code, other laws and other legal acts are preserved.

Article 380. Employer's obligation not to block the protection of labor rights

An employer, employer's representatives have no right to block the protection of labor rights by employees themselves. Persecution of employees for the use of protection methods, allowed by law is forbidden.

CHAPTER 60. PROCESSING OF INDIVIDUAL LABOR DISPUTES

Article 381. The concept of an individual labor dispute

Individual labor dispute is a sum of unsolved differences between an employer and an employee, on issues, regarding the application of laws and other legal acts, containing labor regulations, as well as the application of collective contract, agreement or labor contract (including these, pertaining to setting or modifying individual labor conditions), of which a claim is submitted to the body, engaged in processing individual labor disputes.

Individual labor dispute is considered to be a dispute between an employer and a person, who stood in labor relations with the said employer earlier, as well as a person, wishing to enter into a labor contract with the employer, in case the employer refuses to enter such a contract.

Article 382. Bodies, engaged in processing of individual labor disputes

Individual labor disputes are processed by labor dispute commissions and by courts.

Article 383. The procedure of processing of labor disputes

The procedure of processing of labor disputes is regulated by this Code and other federal laws. The procedure of processing of labor disputes in court is farther defined by the civil procedural legislation of the Russian federation.

Factors, pertaining to the processing of individual labor disputes of selective categories of employees are set by federal laws.

Article 384. Formation of labor dispute commissions

Labor dispute commissions are formed on the initiative of employees and (or) employer from the representatives of employees and employer in equal numbers

Representatives of employees are elected to the labor dispute commission by the general meeting (conference) of employees of an organization or are delegated by the representative body of employees with subsequent approval by the general meeting (conference) of employees of an organization.

Representatives of an employer are appointed to the commission by the head of an organization.

By the resolution of the general meeting of employees, labor dispute commissions can be formed in structural departments of an organization. These commissions are formed and are working on the grounds, similar to those of labor dispute commissions of an organization. Departmental labor dispute commissions can process individual labor disputes within the frame of reference of these departments.

Labor dispute commission has a seal of its own. Organizational and technical provisions, facilitating the commission's activity are implemented by an employer.

Labor dispute commission elects a chairman and a secretary among its members.

Article 385. Frame of reference of labor dispute commissions

Labor dispute commission is a body, processing individual labor disputes, arising in organizations, with the exception of disputes, for which other processing procedure is set by this Code and other federal laws.

An individual labor dispute is processed by the labor dispute commission if an employee in the course of direct discussion with an employer did not solve the differences himself or with the participation of his representative.

Article 386. The period of appeal to the labor dispute commission

An employee can submit an appeal to the labor dispute commission in the period of three months, since the moment he learned or was supposed to learn about the infringement of his right.

In case the period set is missed due to considerate reasons, the labor dispute commission can restore the period and solve the dispute in essence.

Article 387. The procedure of processing of an individual labor dispute in the labor dispute commission

Employee's appeal, submitted to the labor dispute commission is subject to obligatory registration by the said commission.

Labor dispute commission must process an individual labor dispute in ten calendar days since the submission of an appeal by an employee.

The dispute is processed in the presence of the employee, who submitted an appeal, or his authorized representative. Processing of a dispute in the absence of an employee or his representative is permitted only by his written consent. If an employee or his representative fail to appear before the commission, the processing of the labor dispute is postponed. If an employee or his representative fail to appear before the commission for the second time with no considerate reasons, the commission may cancel the processing at all, which fact does not deprive an employee of the right to appeal to the commission for the second time within the period, set by this Code.

Labor dispute commission has the right to summon witnesses and invite experts. On demand of the commission the head of an organization must provide the commission with all necessary documents in the period set.

Proceeding of the commission is considered legally competent if not less than a half of its members, representing employees and not less than a half of its members, representing an employer is present.

Proceedings of labor dispute commission are entered on the records, signed by the chairman of the commission or his deputy and stamped by the seal of the commission.

Article 388. Procedures for issue of a decision by the industrial disputes commission and the subject thereof

The Industrial Disputes Commission shall make a decision by secret ballot with a majority of votes being present at the meeting of members of the Commission.

The decision of the Industrial Disputes Commission shall include:

- name of organization (subdivision), full name, title, profession or specialty of the employee who referred to the Commission;
- dates of referring to the Commission and complaint hearing, the subject of a dispute;
- full names of members of the Commission and other persons appeared at the meeting;
- the subject of a decision and the grounds thereof (with reference to Law or any other Standard Act);
- the ballot results.

Duly notarized copies of the decision of the Industrial Disputes Commission shall be given to employee and manager within three days of the decision.

Article 389. Enforcement of decisions of the Industrial Disputes Commission

The decision of the Industrial Disputes Commission is subject to enforcement within three days upon expiration of ten days period provided for appeal.

In case of failure to enforce such decision in fixed time, the Industrial Disputes Commission shall issue to employee a certificate being a writ. The certificate shall not be issued if employee or employer applied in fixed time in order to refer the industrial dispute to the Court.

On the basis of the certificate issued by the Industrial Disputes Commission and submitted within three months of its receipt, the bailiff shall enforce the decision of the Industrial Disputes Commission compulsorily.

In the event that the employee fails to apply within the fixed three months with valid reasons, the Industrial Disputes Commission may reestablish this term.

Article 390. Appeal of a decision of the Industrial Disputes Commission`s and referring of an individual industrial dispute to the Court

In the event that the Commission fails to hear an individual industrial dispute within ten days, the employee shall be entitled to refer his complaint to the Court.

The decision of the Industrial Disputes Commission may be appealed at the court by the employee or the employer within ten days of issuing him a copy thereof.

In case of failure to do so within the fixed time with valid reasons, the court may reestablish the term and consider the subject of the individual industrial dispute.

Article 391. Settlement of individual industrial disputes at the court

The court shall hear individual industrial disputes upon claims by employee, employer or trade union protecting the interests of employees, in case that they disagree with the Commission`s decision, or where the employer refers to the court without his prior reference to the Commission, as well as upon the prosecutor`s claim in case of the decision being controversy to laws or other Standard Acts.

The following claims for individual industrial disputes shall be considered directly at the court:

- if a claim is submitted by the employee on reinstatement regardless of the grounds for termination of employment contract, on change of date or wording of the reason of dismissal, on re-engagement, on forced absence compensation or on wage difference while hired at a lower paid job;

- if a claim is submitted by the employer on indemnification by employee to organization, unless otherwise provided by federal statutes.

Other individual industrial disputes subject to hearing at the court directly:

- refusal to hire;
- disputes submitted by employees hired by employers - individuals on contractual basis;
- disputes submitted by persons allegedly discriminated.

Article 392. Terms of reference to the court for settlement of an individual industrial dispute

Employee has the right to refer to the court in order to have his dispute resolved within three months from the date where he became aware or should have become aware of the violation of his right, and for dismissal disputes - within one month of issuing him a copy of the dismissal order or a work-book.

Employer may refer to the court a dispute concerning indemnification by employee of the damage caused to organization within one year from the date of this damage being found.

If case of failure to do so within the terms stated herein with valid reasons, the court may reestablish them.

Article 393. Exempt of employees from legal expenses

Employees referring to the court with claims arising out of employment relations, shall be exempted from fees and legal expenses.

Article 394. Ruling on industrial disputes of dismissal and re-engagement

In case of finding dismissal or re-engagement being unfair, the employee shall be reinstated by the industrial tribunal.

The industrial tribunal shall rule on average wage payable to employee for his forced absence, or wage difference while him being hired at a lower paid job.

Upon employee`s claim the industrial tribunal may limit itself to ruling on payment of such benefits in his favour.

Upon employee`s complaint the industrial tribunal may decide to modify a wording of the grounds for dismissal as resignation on the basis of employee`s own intent.

In case of acknowledging a wording of the grounds for dismissal being improper or controversy to law, the industrial tribunal shall be liable to modify it and state in the decision the reason of and the grounds for the dismissal strictly following the wording of this Code or any other federal statute.

In the event that an improper wording of a reason of dismissal in a work-book prevented from re-employment elsewhere, the court shall decide on payment to the employee of average wage for the time of forced absence.

In case of unlawful or unfair dismissal, or illegal re-engagement, the court may, upon employee`s claim, decide on indemnification for moral damage caused to employee by such actions. The court shall determine the amount of a compensation.

Article 395. Satisfaction of money claims of the employee

Any money claims of employee, acknowledged by the industrial tribunal as warranted, shall be paid in the total amount.

Article 396. Enforcement of decisions on reinstatement

Decision on reinstatement of employee, dismissed unlawfully, on reinstatement in his previous job of employee re-engaged unlawfully, shall be subject to immediate enforcement. In case of delay by employer of enforcement of such decision, the respective body shall determine a payment to employee of average wage or wage difference for the whole period of such delay.

Article 397. Restriction on reclaim of sums paid upon the decision of industrial tribunals

In the event of the decision being cancelled under control, reclaim of sums, paid to employee upon such decision of industrial tribunals, shall be possible only provided the decision cancelled is based on false data or forged documents submitted by employee.

CHAPTER 61. CONSIDERATION OF COLLECTIVE INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES

Article 398. Main concepts

Collective industrial dispute is unsettled controversies between employees (their representatives) and employers (their representatives), concerning establishment and change of labour conditions (including a wage), conclusion, modification and performance of contracts, agreements, as well as relating to employer`s refusal to consider the opinion of an elective representative unit of employees for adoption of acts, containing norms of the labour law, within organizations.

Conciliatory procedures are consideration of a collective industrial dispute for the purpose of its settlement through the Commission for Conciliation, mediation and/or at the industrial arbitration.

The beginning of a collective industrial dispute shall be the day of issue of the employer`s (his representative) decision to decline employee`s (their representatives) claims, in whole or in part, or failure by employer (his agent) to communicate a decision in accordance with the article 400 of this Code, and the date of producing a dispute report in the course of collective bargaining.

Strike is a temporary voluntary refusal of employees to perform their industrial liabilities (wholly or in part) for the purpose of settlement of a collective industrial dispute.

Article 399. Raise of claims by employees and their representatives

The right to raise claims shall be vested with employees and their representatives as defined by articles 29-31 of this Code.

Claims, raised by employees and/or representative unit of employees of organization (subsidiary, representative office or other separate structural subdivision) shall be approved at the respective meeting (conference) of employees.

The meeting of employees shall be deemed authorized provided there being present the majority of employees. The conference shall be deemed authorized provided there being present at least two thirds of elective delegates.

The employer shall be obliged to provide employees or their agents with required premises for the conduct of a meeting (conference) concerning raise of claims, and shall not prevent its conduct.

Claims of employees shall be made in writing and serviced to the Employer.

Claims of trade unions and their associations shall be raised and serviced to the respective parties to social partnership.

A written copy of claims may be forwarded to the Service for Settlement of Collective Industrial Dispute. In such case the Service shall be liable to verify as to whether the other party to collective industrial dispute has received the claims.

Article 400. Consideration of claims of employees, trade unions and their associations

Employers shall be liable to consider the received claims of employees.

The Employer shall notify a representative unit of employees of organization (subsidiary, representative office or other separate structural subdivision) of his decision in writing within three working days of the receipt of such claims.

The agents of employers (associations of employers) shall be liable to consider the claims forwarded by trade unions (their associations) and notify trade unions (their associations) of the adopted decision within a month of the receipt of such claims.

Article 401. Conciliatory procedures

The procedure of settlement of a collective industrial dispute includes the following steps: consideration of collective industrial dispute through the Commission for Conciliation, consideration of collective industrial dispute through mediation and/or at the Industrial Arbitration.

Consideration of collective industrial dispute through the Commission for Conciliation is a mandatory step. In case of failure to settle the collective industrial dispute through the Commission for Conciliation the parties shall refer to mediator and/or at the Industrial Arbitration.

Each party to a collective industrial dispute may refer at all times after the beginning of such dispute to the Service for Settlement of Collective Industrial Dispute for notifying registration of the dispute.

Neither party shall evade participation in conciliatory procedures.

The parties` agents, the Commission for Conciliation, mediator, the Industrial Arbitration, the aforesaid Service shall use every possibility provided by laws in order to settle the arisen collective industrial dispute.

Conciliation procedures are to be held within the times stipulated by this Code.

If necessary, the times, provided for the conduct of conciliation procedures, may be prolonged upon agreement of the parties to collective industrial dispute.

Article 402. Consideration of a collective industrial dispute through the Commission for Conciliation

The Commission for Conciliation shall be formed within a period of up to three working days of the beginning of collective industrial dispute. The decision on formation of the Commission shall be produced as the respective order (bylaw) of employer and the decision of employees` agent.

The Commission for Conciliation shall be formed of parties` agents on equal rights basis.

Parties to collective industrial dispute shall not evade the establishment of the Commission for Conciliation and participation in its work.

The Employer shall set up all requisite conditions for the work of the Commission for Conciliation.

The collective industrial dispute shall be administered by the Commission for Conciliation within five working days of the issue of order on its formation. The specified term may be prolonged upon mutual agreement of the parties and will be produced in the form of a protocol.

The decision of the Commission for Conciliation shall be adopted upon the parties' agreement, produced in the form of a protocol, and be binding for the parties and subject to enforcement within the terms and times specified by the Commission for Conciliation.

In case of failure to reach agreement through the Commission for Conciliation, the parties shall continue conciliatory procedures with mediator and/or at the Industrial Arbitration.

Article 403. Consideration of collective industrial dispute with mediator

Once the dispute protocol is produced, the parties to collective industrial dispute may refer to a mediator within three working days. If necessary, the parties to collective industrial dispute may refer to the Service for Settlement of Collective Industrial Dispute in order to obtain a recommendation letter concerning mediator's candidacy. If the parties to collective industrial dispute failed to agree upon his candidacy within three working days, they shall start formation of the Industrial Arbitration.

The procedures for consideration of a collective industrial dispute through the mediator shall be determined by the parties' agreement with mediator.

The mediator shall be entitled to request and to obtain from the parties all necessary papers and information pertaining to the dispute.

The consideration of the collective industrial dispute through mediator shall be held within a period of up to seven working days from the day of him being invited (appointed) and shall end with adoption of the agreed decision in writing by the parties to collective industrial dispute, or with producing a dispute protocol.

Article 404. Consideration of collective industrial dispute at the industrial arbitration

The Industrial Arbitration is a temporarily existing unit for consideration of collective industrial dispute, which shall be formed in the event that the parties to such dispute have agreed in writing on mandatory enforcement of its decisions.

The Industrial Arbitration shall be formed by the parties to collective industrial dispute and the Service for Settlement of Collective Industrial Disputes not later than three working days after the end of consideration of a collective industrial dispute with the Commission for Conciliation or the mediator.

The formation of the Industrial Arbitration, membership, regulations, authorities shall be reflected in the respective decision of the employer, the agent of employees and the specified Service.

The collective industrial dispute shall be considered at the Industrial Arbitration with participation of agents of the parties to the dispute for up to five working days of its formation.

The Industrial Arbitration shall consider the parties' claims; receive the required papers and information, pertaining to such dispute; inform, if necessary, the state and local authorities of possible social consequences of a collective industrial dispute; make recommendations on the subject of a collective industrial dispute.

Written recommendations of the Industrial Arbitration concerning settlement of collective industrial dispute shall be given to the parties involved.

Article 405. Guarantees pertaining to settlement of collective industrial dispute

Members of the Commission for Conciliation, industrial arbitrators, while considering collective industrial dispute, shall be relieved from their principal employment with their average wage being reserved, for a period of not more than three months in one year.

Agents of employees, their associations participating in a settlement of collective industrial dispute, shall not be, for the period of such settlement, subject to any disciplinary punishment, re-engaged or dismissed upon the employer`s initiative without prior consent of the authorizing body.

Article 406. Evasion of conciliatory procedures

In case of evasion by either party of participation in the formation or the work of the Commission for Conciliation, the collective industrial dispute shall be referred for consideration to the Industrial Arbitration.

In case of employer`s evasion of formation of the Industrial Arbitration and refusal to perform its recommendations, employees may call a strike.

Formation of the Industrial Arbitration is mandatory in organizations where strikes are being banned or restricted by law.

Article 407. Participation of the Service for Settlement of Collective Industrial Disputes in resolving collective industrial disputes

The Service for Settlement of Collective Industrial disputes is a system of state authorities (subdivisions), which are formed as part of the federal executive body of labour, the respective executive bodies of the subjects of the Russian Federation and local governments. It is designed to assist in settlement of collective industrial dispute through conciliatory procedures and participation in them.

The Service for Settlement of Collective Industrial disputes:

- provides notifying registration of collective industrial disputes;
- verifies, where necessary, authorities of agents of the parties to collective industrial dispute;
- produces a list of industrial arbitrators;
- carries on training of industrial arbitrators majoring in settlement of collective industrial disputes;

- reveals and abstracts reasons and background conditions resulting in collective industrial disputes, makes proposals on their elimination;
- grants systematic assistance to the parties to collective industrial dispute throughout the whole process of settlement of such dispute;
- provides financial assistance to conciliatory procedures in accordance with established procedures;
- arranges for settlement of collective industrial disputes in cooperation with agents of employees and employers, state and local governments.

The employees of the Service for Settlement of Collective Industrial Disputes have the right, upon presentation of appropriate certificate, of unimpeded visit of a work area pertaining to the dispute (subsidiary, representative office or any other separate structural subdivision) for the purpose of settlement of a collective industrial dispute, finding and elimination of reasons giving birth to such disputes.

Article 408. Agreement in the course of settlement of a collective industrial dispute

Agreement reached by the parties to collective industrial dispute in the course of settlement of such dispute, is to be made in writing and shall be binding for the parties to collective industrial dispute. The performance thereof shall be monitored by parties to the collective industrial dispute.

Article 409. Strike right

Pursuant to the article 37 of the Constitution of the Russian Federation, employees have a strike right as a way of settlement of collective industrial disputes.

If conciliatory procedures failed to settle a collective industrial dispute or the employer evades conciliatory procedures, or to perform the agreement reached in the course of the settlement of a collective industrial dispute, employees or their representatives shall be entitled to start a strike.

Participation in a strike is voluntary. No individual can be coerced to participate or to refuse to participate in a strike.

Individuals, coercing employees to participate or to refuse to participate in a strike, shall be subject to disciplinary, administrative, or criminal punishment, as provided herein or any other federal statutes.

Agents of employers shall not be entitled to begin a strike or to participate in it.

Article 410. Calling a strike

The decision of calling a strike shall be made at the meeting (conference) of employees of organization (subsidiary, representative office, other separate structural subdivision) upon proposal submitted by duly authorized unit of employees. The decision of calling a strike, adopted by trade union (trade union association), shall be approved for each organization by the meeting (conference) of employees of such organization.

The meeting (conference) of employees shall be deemed authorized provided there being present at least two thirds of the total number of employees (conference delegates).

The employer shall provide for premises and set up necessary conditions for the conduct of a meeting (conference) of employees and shall not prevent its conduct.

The decision shall be deemed adopted provided it has at least half of the votes appeared at the meeting (conference). In case of failure to conduct a meeting (to call a conference) of employees, the representative unit of employees shall have the right to approve its decision by collecting signatures with more than half of employees in support of a strike.

After five calendar days of the work of the Commission for Conciliation, a one-hour warning strike may be announced once, and the employer shall be given a three days` written notice.

During the warning strike the head unit shall provide for the minimum of required accomplishments (services) in accordance with this Code.

The employer shall be given a written notice of a future strike not later than ten calendar days in advance.

The decision of calling a strike shall incorporate the following:

- list of differences of the parties to collective industrial dispute being a ground for calling and conduct of a strike;
- date and time of the beginning of a strike, its presumable length and number of participants;
- name of a head unit, list of employees agents, authorized to participate in conciliatory procedures;
- proposals on the minimum of required accomplishments (services) to be carried out within an organization, subsidiary, other separate structural subdivision during the strike period.

The Employer shall give a strike notice to the Service for Settlement of Collective Industrial Disputes.

Article 411. Head striking unit

The strike shall be led by the representative unit of employees.

The head striking unit shall be entitled to call a meeting (conference) of employees, to receive from employer any information regarding the interests of employees, to have experts make conclusions concerning disputed issues.

The head striking unit has the right to suspend a strike. Reconsidering the dispute by the Commission for Conciliation or at the Court is not required for resuming a strike. The employer and the Service for Settlement of Collective Industrial Disputes should be notified of resuming a strike not later than three working days in advance.

Article 412. Parties liabilities in the course of a strike

During the strike period the parties to a collective industrial dispute shall be liable to continue the settlement of such dispute through the conduct of conciliatory procedures.

The Employer, executive bodies, local governments and the head striking unit shall be liable to take all possible measures in order to provide for public order, property safety of organization (subsidiary, representative office, other separate structural subdivision) and employees during the strike period, as well as for the work of the machinery and equipment, which being suspended threaten to people`s life and health.

List of the minimum of required accomplishments (services) in organizations, subsidiaries, representative offices, whose activities are connected with people`s safety, health support and essential public interests, shall be produced and approved in each branch (sub-branch) of economy by federal executive body authorized for coordination and governing of activities in the respective branch (sub-branch) of economy, according to agreement with the respective Russian National Trade Union. In case there being existing several Russian National Trade Unions in any branch (sub-branch) of economy, a list of the minimum of required accomplishments (services) shall be approved upon agreement with each of the Russian National Trade Unions existing in the branch (sub-branch) of economy. Procedures of producing and approval of the minimum of required accomplishments (services) shall be determined by the Government of the Russian Federation.

The executive body of the subject of the Russian Federation shall produce and approve, on the basis of lists of the minimum of required accomplishments (services), produced and approved by the respective federal executive bodies, upon agreement with the respective territorial associations of trade union organizations (trade unions associations), territorial lists of the minimum of required accomplishments with the specification of the content and determination of the minimum of required accomplishments (services) in the territory of the respective subject of the Russian Federation.

The minimum of required accomplishments (services) in organization, subsidiary, representative office shall be determined upon agreement of the parties to collective industrial dispute in conjunction with a local government, on the basis of lists of the minimum of required accomplishments (services) within five days of the decision on calling a strike. The inclusion of any type of accomplishments (services) into the minimum list, shall be justified by the fact of threat to civilians health or life. The minimum of required accomplishments (services) shall not include accomplishments (services) which are not provided in the respective lists of the minimum of required accomplishments (services).

In case of failure to achieve agreement, the minimum of required accomplishments (services) in organization (subsidiary, representative office) shall be determined by the executive body of the subject of the Russian Federation.

The decision of such body to establish the minimum of required accomplishments (services) for organization, subsidiary, representative office, can be appealed by the parties to collective industrial dispute.

In case of failure to provide for the minimum of required accomplishments (services) the strike shall be acknowledged unlawful.

Article 413. Unlawful strikes

Pursuant to the article 55 of the Constitution of the Russian Federation the following strikes shall be deemed unlawful and not permissible:

a) during the period of military or emergency situations or special procedures in accordance with the legislation on emergency situation; in the bodies and organizations of the Armed Forces of the Russian Federation, military, militarized or other formations and organizations providing for the country defense, State safety, repair-rescuing, search-rescuing, and anti-fire operations, prevention or elimination of the Acts of God and emergency situations; in law enforcement bodies; in organizations dealing with highly hazardous facilities or machinery, at ambulance stations of first medical aid;

b) in the bodies of essential public services (energy, heating, water, gas supply, air-, railway and water transport) in case if the conduct of strike threatens to the country`s defense and safety and to life and health of its people.

The strike right may be limited by the federal statute.

The strike shall be unlawful if it was announced without considering the terms, procedures, and requirements of collective industrial dispute, stipulated herein.

The decision of acknowledgement of a strike being unlawful shall be adopted by supreme courts of republics, territorial, regional courts, municipal federal courts, courts of autonomous regions and circuits upon employer`s or prosecutor`s claim.

Award of a court shall be communicated to employees through the head striking unit which shall immediately inform of it the strike participants.

Once adopted, the award which acknowledges the strike being unlawful, is subject to immediate enforcement. Employees shall terminate the strike and return to work not later than the day after the issue of a copy of such award to the head striking unit.

In case of a direct threat to life and health of people, the court shall be entitled to adjourn the non started strike for the period of up to 30 days, in case of a strike in progress - to suspend it for the same period.

In cases of vital importance for the interests of the Russian Federation or parts of its territory, the Government of the Russian Federation shall be entitled to suspend a strike until the issue of award by the respective court, but not more than for ten calendar days.

In cases where a strike cannot be conducted subject to Parts I and II of this Article, the decision on a collective industrial dispute shall be issued by the Government of the Russian Federation within a ten days period.

Article 414. Guarantees and legal conditions of employees in connection with the conduct of a strike

Participation of employee in a strike may not be considered as breach of labour discipline or ground for the employment contract dissolution, except for cases of non-fulfillment of the liability to terminate a strike in accordance with part six article 413 of this Code.

It is forbidden to apply towards participating employees measures of disciplinary punishment, except for cases provided in the part six article 413 of this Code.

Employees shall have their employments and positions reserved throughout the strike period.

Employer shall have the right not to pay wages to employees during the strike period, except for employees engaged in fulfilling the mandatory minimum of accomplishments (services).

Any collective contract, agreement or agreements, reached during the settlement of a collective industrial dispute, may provide for compensation due to participating employees.

Non participating employees, however unable to do their work because of the strike and having stated in writing the beginning of a work stoppage, shall be paid compensation on the basis of no fault of employee, in the amount stipulated herein. Employer shall be entitled to re-engage these employees in accordance with the procedures established herein.

Any collective contract, agreement or agreements reached in the course of the settlement of collective industrial dispute, may provide for a more advantageous benefit to non participating employees than as stipulated in this Code.

Article 415. Lockout ban

Lockout (dismissal of employees on the employer`s initiative in connection with their participation in the collective industrial dispute or strike) shall be banned throughout the period of settlement of a collective industrial dispute, including the conduct of a strike.

Article 416. Responsibility for conciliatory procedures evasion and non-performance of agreement reached as outcome of a conciliatory procedure

Employer`s agents evading receipt of employees claims and participation in conciliatory procedures, including their failure to provide for premises for the conduct of a meeting (conference) concerning issue of claims, strike announcement, or preventing its conduct, shall be subject to disciplinary punishment in accordance with this Code, or to any administrative punishment as provided in the statutes of the Russian Federation on administrative infractions.

Agents of employer and employees being in fault of non-fulfillment of liabilities of agreement reached through conciliatory procedures, shall be subject to administrative punishment as established by statutes of the Russian Federation on administrative infractions.

Article 417. Responsibility of employees for unlawful strikes

Employees who have started a strike or failed to terminate it the day after the head striking unit was notified of the enacted award acknowledging the strike being unlawful, or adjournment or suspension of the strike, may be subject to disciplinary punishment for infringement of employment discipline.

The representative unit of employees, which called and failed to terminate the strike thereafter, shall be liable to indemnify for losses incurred by employer due to the strike at its own expense and in the amount determined by the court.

Article 418. Keeping documentation during settlement of a collective industrial dispute

Actions of the parties to collective industrial dispute, or agreements and recommendations being taken and adopted in relation to settlement of such dispute, shall be produced as a protocol by agents of the parties to collective industrial dispute, conciliatory committees, the head striking unit.

CHAPTER 62. RESPONSIBILITY FOR BREACH OF THE LABOUR LEGISLATION AND OTHER STANDARD ACTS OF THE LABOUR LAW

Article 419. Responsibility classification for breach of the labour legislation and other standard acts of the labour law

Persons who have violated labour legislation and other normative acts containing labour law provisions are held responsible according to the disciplinary provisions contained in the present Code, as well as in accordance to the relevant provisions of the civil, administrative and criminal legislation.
